Waking The Giant How A Changing Climate Triggers Earthquakes Tsunamis And Volcanoes:

Waking the Giant Bill McGuire, 2012-02-23 Twenty thousand years ago our planet was an icehouse Temperatures were down six degrees ice sheets kilometres thick buried much of Europe and North America and sea levels were 130m lower The following 15 millennia saw an astonishing transformation as our planet metamorphosed into the temperate world upon which our civilisation has grown and thrived One of the most dynamic periods in Earth history saw rocketing temperatures melt the great ice sheets like butter on a hot summer s day feeding torrents of freshwater into ocean basins that rapidly filled to present levels The removal of the enormous weight of ice at high latitudes caused the crust to bounce back triggering earthquakes in Europe and North America and provoking an unprecedented volcanic outburst in Iceland A giant submarine landslide off the coast of Norway sent a tsunami crashing onto the Scottish coast while around the margins of the continents the massive load exerted on the crust by soaring sea levels encouraged a widespread seismic and volcanic rejoinder In many ways this post glacial world mirrors that projected to arise as a consequence of unmitigated climate change driven by human activities Already there are signs that the effects of climbing global temperatures are causing the sleeping giant to stir once again Could it be that we are on track to bequeath to our children and their children not only a far hotter world but also a more geologically fractious one

Waking the Giant Bill McGuire, 2013-04-25 The last 20 000 years has seen our world flip from icehouse to greenhouse provoking earthquakes tsunamis and volcanic outbursts Like a giant stirring from a long sleep the Earth beneath our feet tossed and turned Bill McGuire argues that climate change is once more setting the scene for the giant to reawaken and we can already see the signs

Connolly,2024-09-03 Composed as a counter history of western philosophical and political thought Stormy Weather explores the role western cosmologies have played in the conquests of paganism in Europe and the Americas the production of climate wreckage and the concealment of that wreckage from western humanists and earth scientists until late in the day A lived cosmology Connolly says contains embedded understandings about the beginnings of the earth and the way time unfolds The text engages the major western cosmologies of Augustine Descartes Kant Tocqueville together with pagan and minor western orientations that posed challenges to them or could have Hesiod Ovid William Apess Amazonian and Aztec cosmologies Catherine Keller s minor Christianity James Baldwin and Michel Serres instigate key responses often challenging binary logics and the subject object dichotomy with a world of multiple human and nonhuman subjectivities Connolly pursues a conception of time as a multiplicity of intersecting temporalities to come to terms with the vicissitudes of climate destruction and the grandeur of an earth neither highly susceptible to mastery nor designed to harmonize smoothly with humans The book revisits the improbable necessity of a politics of swarming to respond to the ongoing wreckage and potential fascist responses to vast infusions of climate refugees from the south into temperate zone capitalist states Stormy Weather draws on the work of earth scientists indigenous thinkers naturalists humanists and students of nonwestern cosmologies Ultimately Connolly contends that critical intellectuals today must not remain enclosed in disciplinary silos or even in the humanities as currently defined to do justice to our moment of climate wreckage

Contestatory and Creative Poetics for a Time of Climate Catastrophe John Kinsella, Russell West-Pavlov, 2025-10-14 Contestatory and Creative Poetics for a Time of Climate Catastrophe Volume 1 Per Se is an extended narrative meditation upon the meaning of per se which generally denotes the thing in itself for its own sake but that upon closer examination transpires to be a high tensile composite of the thing se and a relationship per that always links it to something else and indeed in relations of internal complexity to itself Per se in the book's multiple parsings of the term is a moniker for the infinite relationality of the world and the relationality of each thing in itself Per se also denotes the endless fractal embedding of bundles of relationality at the successive levels of thing-ness from the infinitesimally minute nano scale to the unimaginably distant outer reaches of the sideral Per se becomes an exploration of the way commodities cut loose from their context of production and floating on sea of oscillating exchange values never cease to morph back into artefacts defined by the socially intensive use values their fellow actants discover in them The book thus focalises a politicised effort to revision the rampant multiscale individualism solipsism and apartheid-like segregation of our age Instead it searches for possibilities or community in every aspect of the world we have learnt to see through a relentlessly atomising and hypostatizing filter The volume claims that every act of perception is political reestablishing obfuscated connections thereby seeking to repair the shredded fabric of the ecosphere below the threshold of myopic common sense Yet it also celebrates the myriad acts of citizen defiance visible and invisible that constitute activist agendas around the world sending signals both practical and exemplary symbolic and literary that shore up communities of resistance everywhere The book does not hesitate to interrogate the fractal responsiveness to its own nature meditating repeatedly on the political character of writing and more significantly of the teaching of writing Central to its concerns are various avatars of trees from the pirogue that hangs above a bar in Lille and one that is crafted as part of an Italian artist's global collaboration on the periphery of this volume's emergence via the jacarandas of post apartheid South Africa to a wood-chipped pine forest that has become a memorial library in Oslo to name only a few of the topics taken up by the book's many silvan micro-fictions Looming over all these concerns are two contemporary silvan catastrophes the megablazes that destroyed forests in Amazonia Australia California Siberia and the Mediterranean during the period when the book was being written and the deforestation that has allowed zoonotic diseases to jump from once secluded animal species to the humans that would never have been their neighbours if naturally occurring forest barriers had been left intact

Sensing Disaster Matthew Lauer, 2023-03-07 In 2007 a tsunami slammed a small island in the western Solomon Islands wreaking havoc on its coastal communities and ecosystems Drawing on over ten years of ethnographic and environmental science research Matthew Lauer provides an intimate account of this catastrophic event that explores how a century of colonization Christianity and increasing entanglement with capitalism prefigured the local response and the tumultuous recovery process Despite near total destruction of several villages few people lost their lives as nearly everyone fled to high ground before the tsunami struck To understand their astonishing lifesaving response Lauer argues that we need to rethink the popular portrayals of indigenous ecological knowledge that inform environmental research and contemporary disaster mitigation strategies so as to avoid displacing those aspects of indigenous knowing and being that tend to be overlooked In an increasingly disaster prone era of ecological crises this important study challenges readers to expand their thinking about the causes and consequences of calamities the effects of disaster relief and recovery efforts and the nature of local knowledge International Environmental Cooperation and The Global Sustainability Capital Framework Chenaz B. Rigby examines a variety of past disasters from the Black Death of the Middle Ages to the mega hurricanes of the twenty first century revealing the dynamic interaction of diverse human and nonhuman factors in their causation unfolding and aftermath Focusing on the link between the ways disasters are framed by the stories told about them and how people tend to respond to them in practice Rigby also shows how works of narrative fiction invite ethical reflection on human relations with one another with our often unruly earthly environs and with other species in the face of eco catastrophe In its investigation of an array of authors from the Romantic period to the present including Heinrich von Kleist Mary Shelley Theodor Storm Colin Thiele and Alexis Wright Dancing with Disaster demonstrates the importance of the environmental humanities in the development of more creative compassionate ecologically oriented and socially just responses to the perils and possibilities of the Anthropocene Under the Sign of Nature Explorations in Ecocriticism
