Unbounded Practice Women And Landscape Architecture In The Early Twentieth Century:

Unbounded Practice Thaisa Way, 2013 Women have practiced as landscape architects for over a century since the founding of the practice as a profession in the United States in the 1890s They came to landscape architecture as gardeners garden designers horticulturalists and fine artists They simultaneously shaped the profession while reflecting contemporary practice It is all the more surprising then that the history of women in American landscape design has received relatively little attention Thaisa Way corrects this oversight in Unbounded Practice Women and Landscape Architecture in the Early Twentieth Century Describing design practice in landscape architecture during the first half of the twentieth century the book serves as a narrative both of women such as Beatrix Jones Farrand Marian Cruger Coffin Annette Hoyt Flanders Ellen Biddle Shipman Martha Brookes Hutcheson and Marjorie Sewell Cautley and of the practice as it became a profession Winner of a 2008 David R Coffin Publication Grant awarded by the Foundation for Landscape Studies Women in Scandinavian Landscape Architecture Svava Riesto, Henriette Steiner, 2024-12-02 Women were active in landscape architecture in Scandinavia throughout the twentieth century yet little is known about their contribution This volume therefore asks where are the women in Scandinavian landscape architecture It thus presents new knowledge about women's contributions to the shaping of modern cities and landscapes in the Scandinavian welfare states With chapters by some of the most respected architectural and landscape architectural historians as well as up and coming scholars and practice based artistic researchers the book makes three major contributions First it asks the previously neglected question of women's contributions to twentieth century landscape architecture in Denmark Sweden and Norway Second it does so from a transnational perspective bringing together researchers from Scandinavia and Finland Third it documents how collaborative formats for knowledge creation can generate new insights and fruitful links between researchers and research materials The book brings to light new knowledge and new forms of architectural historical work on the contributions of many women landscape architects to designed open spaces The Routledge Handbook of Landscape Architecture Education Diedrich Bruns, Stefanie Hennecke, 2022-11-15 In this handbook 60 authors senior and junior educators and researchers from six continents provide an overview of 200 years of landscape architectural education They tell the stories of schools and people of visions and of experiments that constitute landscape architecture education heritage Through taking an international perspective the handbook centers inclusivity with an appreciation for how education develops in different political and societal contexts Part I introduces the field of education history research including research approaches and international research exchange Spanning more than 100 years Parts II and III investigate and compare early and recent histories of landscape architecture education in different countries and schools In Part IV the book offers new perspectives for landscape architecture education Education research presents a substantial opportunity for challenging studies to increase the pedagogic and didactic the academic and historic and the disciplinary knowledge basis Through a boundary crossing approach these studies about landscape architecture education provide a reference to teachers and students policymakers and administrators who strive for innovative holistic and interdisciplinary practice

From Garden Art to Landscape Architecture Joachim Wolschke-Bulmahn, Ronald Clark, 2021-04-26 Originally the area of responsibility for landscape architecture was based on the premise that the planning and creating of open spaces such as parks and gardens was the business of garden artists Today the training of landscape architects and future challenges of the profession include the protection of natural resources and the environment urban planning or tourism to name but a few The international symposium From Garden Art to Landscape Architecture Traditions Re Evaluations and Future Perspectives addressed questions which based on the idea of garden art should help to reconstruct its historical development but also discussed the notion and the relevance of art in everyday work The contributions critically reflect on the professional self image of landscape architects at the beginning of the 21st century The symposium in September 2018 was co organized by the City and State Capital of Hannover s Herrenhausen Gardens Division the Deutsche Gesellschaft f r Gartenkunst und Landschaftsarchitektur DGGL the Volkswagen Foundation and the Centre of Garden Art and Landscape Architectur

Green Landscapes in the European City, 1750-2010 Peter Clark, Marjaana Niemi, Catharina Nolin, 2016-12-08 Green space is a fundamental concept for understanding modern and contemporary urban society shedding light not only on the ecological development of cities but also societal relations urban governance and planning processes Closely linked to issues of environmental change changing perceptions of nature urban well being and social integration as well as city economic competitiveness and branding it is an important element both in the internationalisation of European cities and the forging of their distinctive communal identities Building upon recent research on the history of green landscapes in the city in Europe and North America this volume mirrors the burgeoning global attention to urban green space developments from city policy makers and planners architects climatologists ecologists geographers and other social scientists Taking case studies from Paris London Berlin Helsinki and other leading centres the volume examines when why and how green landscapes evolved in major cities and the extent to which they have been shaped by shared external forces as well as by distinctive and specific local needs Quantifying green space trends in this way raises important issues of classification and categorisation of the different varieties of urban green space While urban parks have received considerable coverage many other smaller less prestigious spaces have been largely ignored This volume argues that green landscapes can only be properly understood when the full range of spaces from parks to recreation grounds housing areas allotments and domestic gardens is taken into account Adopting a broader approach to urban green space helps put European developments during the 19th and 20th centuries into a global perspective

Teaching Landscape History Jan Woudstra, David Jacques, Robert Holden, 2023-11-29 Landscape history is changing in content and style to address the issues of today Experienced teachers and authors on the history of gardens and landscapes come together in this new volume to share ideas on the future of teaching history in departments of landscape architecture archaeology geography and allied subjects Design history remains important but this volume brings to the fore the increasing importance of environmental history economic history landscape history cultural landscapes environmental justice and decolonisation ideas of sustainability and climate change amelioration which may all be useful in serving the needs of a widening range of students in an increasingly complex world The main themes include what history should we narrate in the education of landscape architects how can we recognise counter narratives and our own bias how should we engage the students in the history of their chosen profession how can designers and researchers be persuaded of the relevance of history teaching to theory and practice and what resources do we need to develop teaching of landscape histories This book will be of interest to anyone teaching courses on landscape architecture urban design horticulture garden design architectural history cultural geography and more

Steward of the Land

Thomas Affleck, 2014-10-13 In the first collection of published writings of Thomas Affleck 1812-1868 Lake Douglas re-establishes the reputation of a tireless agricultural reformer entrepreneur and horticulturist Affleck's wide range of interests animal husbandry agriculture scientific farming ornamental horticulture insects and hydrology among others should afford him a celebrated status in several disciplines yet until now his immense contributions remained largely unheralded Steward of the Land remedies this oversight with a broad annotated selection of Affleck's works rightfully placing him alongside his better known contemporaries Andrew Jackson Downing and Frederick Law Olmsted After immigrating to the United States from Scotland in 1832 Affleck witnessed the burgeoning American expansion and its major advances in agriculture and technology He worked as a journalist for the influential Western Farmer and Gardener covering Ohio Kentucky and the Mississippi River Valley Affleck moved to Mississippi in 1842 to manage his new wife's failing plantation there he created one of the first commercial nurseries of the South while writing prolifically on numerous agrarian topics for regional periodicals and newspapers From 1845 to 1865 he edited Affleck's Southern Rural Almanac and Plantation and Garden Calendar published in New Orleans Following a postwar move to Brenham Texas he published letters and essays about rebuilding that state's livestock herds and rejuvenating its agricultural labor forces Steward of the Land includes excerpts from dozens of Affleck's articles on subjects ranging from bee keeping to gardening to orchard tending This valuable single volume resource reveals Affleck's astonishing breadth of horticultural knowledge and entrepreneurial sagacity and his role in educating mid-nineteenth century readers about agricultural products and practices plant usage and environmental stewardship Never before collected or contextualized Affleck's writings provide a firsthand account of the advancement of agricultural techniques and practices that created a new environmental awareness in America
