Planning for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, Committee to Assess the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Water Resources Project Planning Procedures, 1999-03-29 The U S Army Corps of Engineers has long been one of the federal government s key agencies in planning the uses of the nation s waterways and water resources Though responsible for a range of water related programs the Corps s two traditional programs have been flood damage reduction and navigation enhancement The water resource needs of the nation however have for decades been shifting away from engineered control of watersheds toward restoration of ecosystem services and natural hydrologic variability In response to these shifting needs legislation was enacted in 1990 which initiated the Corps s involvement in ecological restoration which is now on par with the Corps s traditional flood damage reduction and navigation roles This book provides an analysis of the Corps s efforts in ecological restoration and provides broader recommendations on how the corps might streamline their planning process It also assesses the impacts of federal legislation on the Corps planning and projects and provides recommendations on how relevant federal policies might be altered in order to improve Corps planning Another important shift affecting the Corps has been federal cost sharing arrangements enacted in 1986 mandating greater financial participation in Corps water projects by local co sponsors The book describes how this has affected the Corps sponsor relationship and comments upon how each group must adjust to new planning and political realities Science for Floodplain Management Into the 21st Century ,1994 Science for Floodplain Management Into the 21st Century: Selected studies of natural and human factors related to flood management in the Upper Mississippi River Basin ,1994 Water Policy for Sustainable Development Dave

Feldman, 2007-07-25 The shortage of fresh water is likely to be one of the most pressing issues of the twenty first century A UNESCO report predicts that as many as 7 billion people will face shortages of drinking water by 2050 Here David Lewis Feldman examines river basin management cases around the world to show how fresh water can be managed to sustain economic development while protecting the environment He argues that policy makers can employ adaptive management to avoid making decisions that could harm the environment to recognize and correct mistakes and to monitor environmental and socioeconomic changes caused by previous policies To demonstrate how adaptive management can work Feldman applies it to the Delaware Susquehanna Apalachicola Chattahoochee Flint Sacramento San Joaquin and Columbia river basins He assesses the impacts of runoff pollution and climate change the environmental justice aspects of water management and the prospects for sustainable fresh water management Case studies of the Murray Darling basin in Australia the Rhine and Danube in Europe the Zambezi in Africa and the Rio de la Plata in South America reveal the impediments to and opportunities for adaptive management on a global scale Feldman's comprehensive investigation and practical analysis bring new insight into the global and political challenges of preserving and managing one of the planet's most important resources Water Resources Administration in the United States, 1993 General Technical Report SRS, 1999 Analytical Methods and Approaches for Water Resources Project Planning National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Ocean Studies Board, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee to Assess the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Methods of Analysis and Peer Review for Water Resources Project Planning, Panel on Methods and Techniques of Project Analysis, 2004-09-30 Analytical Methods and Approaches for Water Resources Project Planning is part of a larger study that was conducted in response to a request from the U.S. Congress in the Water Resources Development Act of 2000 for the National Academy of Sciences to review the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' peer review methods and analytical approaches This report reviews the Corps' analytical procedures and planning methods largely in the context of the federal Economic and Environmental Principles and Guidelines for Water and Related Land Resources Implementation Studies also known as the Principles and Guidelines or P and G P G as well as the Corps Planning Guidance Notebook PGN Drinking Water from Forests and Grasslands, 2000 Science for Floodplain Management Into the 21st Century Interagency Floodplain Management Review Committee (U.S.). Scientific Assessment and Strategy Team, 2000 Environmental Politics and Policy in the West, Revised Edition Zachary A. Smith, John Freemuth, 2007-08-30 Population growth and industrial development have put the wide open spaces and natural resources that define the West under immense stress Vested interests clash and come to terms over embattled resources such as water minerals and even open space The federal government controls 40 to 80 percent of the land base in many western states its sway over the futures of the West's communities and environment has prompted the development of unique policies and politics in the West Zachary A Smith and John Freemuth bring together a roster of top scholars to explicate the issues noted above as well as other key questions in this new edition of Environmental Politics and Policy in the West which was first published in 1993 This thoroughly revised and updated edition offers a comprehensive and current survey Contributors address the policy process as it affects western states how bureaucracy and politics shape environmental dialogues in the West how western states innovate environmental policies independently of Washington and how and when science is involved or ignored in management of the West's federal lands Experts in individual resource areas explore multifaceted issues such as the politics of dam removal and restoration wildlife resource concerns suburban sprawl and smart growth the management of hard rock mining and the allocation of the West's tightly limited water resources Contributors include Leslie R Alm Carolyn D Baber Walter F Baber Robert V Bartlett Hugh Bartling Matthew A Cahn R McGreggor Cawley Charles Davis Sandra Davis John C Freemuth Sheldon Kamieniecki Matt Lindstrom William R Mangun Denise McCain Tharnstrom Daniel McCool Jaina L Moan and Zachary A Smith Resolving Water Conflicts Workbook Lynette de Silva, Chris Maser, 2021-11-25 This book works to build trust consensus and capacity to enhance understanding through a water conflict management framework designed to bolster collaborative skills Built on case studies analysis and hands on real life applications it addresses issues of water insecurity of marginalized systems and communities global water viability institutional resilience and the inclusion of faith based traditions for climate action The authors assess the complexities of climate challenges and explain how to create sustainable effective and efficient water approaches for an improved ecological and socioeconomic future within the UN s Sustainable Development Goals Bioregionalism Michael Vincent McGinnis,2005-07-28 Bioregionalism is the first book to explain the theoretical and practical dimensions of bioregionalism from an interdisciplinary standpoint focusing on the place of bioregional identity within global politics Leading contributors from a broad range of disciplines introduce this exciting new concept as a framework for thinking about indigenous peoples local knowledge globalization science global environmental issues modern society conservation history education and restoration Bioregionalism s emphasis on place and community radically changes the way we confront human and ecological issues Sharing the Challenge Interagency Floodplain Management Review Committee (U.S.),1994 Text of Sharing the Challenge Floodplain Management into the 21st Century The Report of the Interagency Floodplain Management Review Committee It proposes a better way to manage floodplains Bibliography of Agriculture with Subject Index ,1993-11 Designing the Bayous Martin Reuss,2004 This history of the Atchafalaya Basin is an account of the transformation of an area that has endured perhaps more human manipulation than any other natural environment in the nation Embracing Watershed Politics Edella Schlager,2008-06-30 As Americans try to better manage and protect the natural resources of our watersheds is politics getting in the way Why does watershed management end up being so political In Embracing Watershed Politics political scientists Edella Schlager and William Blomquist provide timely illustrations and thought provoking explanations of why political considerations are essential unavoidable and in some ways even desirable elements of decision making about water and watersheds With decades of combined study of water management in the United States they focus on the many contending interests and communities found in America s watersheds the fundamental dimensions of decision making and the impacts of science complexity and uncertainty on watershed management Enriched by case studies of the organizations and decision making processes in several major U S watersheds the Delaware River Basin San Gabriel River Platte River and the Columbia River Basin Embracing Watershed Politics presents a reasoned explanation of why there are so few watershed scale integrated management agencies and how the more diverse multi organizational arrangements found in the vast majorities of watersheds work Although the presence of multiple organizations representing a multitude of communities of interest complicates watershed management these institutional arrangements can under certain conditions suit the complexity and uncertainty associated with watershed management in the twenty first century How Local Politics Shape Federal Policy Sarah S. Elkind,2011-08-15 Focusing on five Los Angeles environmental policy debates between 1920 and 1950 Sarah Elkind investigates how practices in American municipal government gave business groups political legitimacy at the local level as well as unanticipated influence over federal politics Los Angeles's struggles with oil drilling air pollution flooding and water and power supplies expose the clout business has had over government Revealing the huge disparities between big business groups and individual community members in power influence and the ability to participate in policy debates Elkind shows that business groups secured their political power by providing Los Angeles authorities with much needed services including studying emerging problems and framing public debates As a result government officials came to view business interests as the public interest When federal agencies looked to local powerbrokers for project ideas and political support local business interests influenced federal policy too Los Angeles with its many environmental problems and its dependence upon the federal government provides a distillation of national urban trends Elkind argues and is thus an ideal jumping off point for understanding environmental politics and the power of business in the middle of the twentieth century
