debate about the Internet's future and fearlessly refutes the misinformation and misconceptions that about Professor Rob Freiden Penn State University Net Neutrality is a very heated and contested policy principle regarding access for content providers to the Internet end user and potential discrimination in that access where the end user's ISP or another ISP blocks that access in part or whole The suggestion has been that the problem can be resolved by either introducing greater competition or closely policing conditions for vertically integrated service such as VOIP However that is not the whole story and ISPs as a whole have incentives to discriminate between content for matters such as network management of spam to secure and maintain customer experience at current levels and for economic benefit from new Quality of Service standards This includes offering a priority lane on the network for premium content types such as video and voice service The author considers market developments and policy responses in Europe and the United States draws conclusions and proposes regulatory recommendations
