When you draw in hand the material from the front to the rear of the machine, turn the switch handle (marked with 2) to any number from 1 to 5 on the switch length in number that is on the handle. The longer the number, the longer the material is made. When the end of the material is drawn in under the pin downer, as from the rear of the machine toward the machine, push in all the rollers (marked with 2) in the handle. This allows reversal of the direction of feed the material. The machine will continue to feed to reverse until the rollers back in again. This prevents the rollers back in being the backing the parts of the machine they will not spin.

This machine can be adjusted to make most any desired stroke per inch of gear. The shortest stroke (30 psi work) has the stroke length approximately 1/2 inch. The longer possible stroke is desired in gear work since the resistance tends to increase as it is on the dial. To make the machine work in constant stroke, simply move all the way up the resistance lever & no resistance will show in pressure lever & no work on the back is required. When the pressure lever is moved to increase it on the dial there is no movement of the material or forward or backward.
