Traditional Ecological Knowledge Solega Ethnobiology:

The Traditional Ecological Knowledge of the Solega Aung Si, 2015-12-09 This book covers the ethnobiology and traditional ecological knowledge TEK of the Solega people of southern India Solega TEK is shown to be a complex inter related network of detailed observations of natural phenomena well reasoned and often highly accurate theorizing as well as a belief system derived from cultural norms regarding the relationships between humans and other species on the one hand and between non human species on the other As language based studies are strongly biased toward investigations of ethno taxonomy and nomenclature the importance of studying TEK in its proper context is discussed as making context and encyclopedic knowledge the objects of study are essential for a proper understanding of TEK The Semantics of Nouns

Zhengdao Ye, 2017-04-14 This volume brings together the latest research on the semantics of nouns in both familiar and less well documented languages including English Mandarin Chinese Russian the Papuan language Koromu the Dravidian language Solega and Pitjantjatjara Yankuntjatjara from Australia Chapters offer systematic and detailed analyses of scores of individual nouns across a range of conceptual domains including people places and living things with each analysis fully grounded in a unified methodological framework They not only cover central theoretical issues specific to the analysis of the domain in question but also empirically investigate the different types of meaning relations that hold between nouns such as meronymy hyponymy taxonomy and antonymy The collection of studies show how in depth meaning analysis anchored in a cross linguistic and cross domain perspective can lead to unexpected insights into the common and particular ways in which speakers of different languages conceptualize categorize and order the world around them This unique volume brings together a new generation of semanticists from across the globe and will be of interest to researchers in linguistics psychology anthropology biology and philosophy Ethnobotany of the Mountain Regions of Mexico Alejandro

Casas, José Juan Blancas Vázquez, 2023-05-31 Research in recent years has increasingly shifted away from purely academic research and into applied aspects of the discipline including climate change research conservation and sustainable development It has by now widely been recognized that traditional knowledge is always in flux and adapting to a quickly changing environment Trends of globalization especially the globalization of plant markets have greatly influenced how plant resources are managed nowadays While ethnobotanical studies are now available from many regions of the world no comprehensive encyclopedic series focusing on the world's mountain regions is available in the market Scholars in plant sciences worldwide will be interested in this website and its dynamic content The field and thus the market of ethnobotany and ethnopharmacology has grown considerably in recent years Student interest is on the rise attendance at professional conferences has grown steadily and the number of professionals calling themselves ethnobotanists has increased significantly the various societies Society for Economic Botany International Society of Ethnopharmacology Society of Ethnobiology International Society for Ethnobiology and many regional and national societies in the field currently have thousands of members Growth has been most robust in BRIC countries The objective of this new MRW on Ethnobotany of Mountain Regions is to take advantage of the increasing international interest and scholarship in the field of mountain research We anticipate including the best and latest research on a full range of descriptive methodological theoretical and applied research on the most important plants for each region Each contribution will be scientifically rigorous and contribute to the overall field of study

The Traditional Ecological Knowledge of the Solega Aung Si,2012 The traditional ecological knowledge TEK of a language community is not only a repository of that community s cultural and intellectual heritage but also a rich source of detailed information with the potential to inform conservation policies and basic scientific research In this thesis I present some key aspects of Solega TEK which is shown to be a complex inter related network of detailed observations of natural phenomena well reasoned and often highly accurate theorising as well as a belief system derived from cultural norms regarding the relationships between humans and other species on the one hand and between non human species on the other In addition the appendices to the thesis contain a sketch grammar of Solega and a small lexicon of around 2 300 entries The thesis begins with a brief survey of the types of research usually carried out under the heading of ethnobiology and shows that language based studies are stongly biased towards investigations of ethno taxonomy and nomenclature I then argue the importance of studying TEK in its proper context and that making context and encyclopaedic knowledge the objects of study are essential for a proper understanding of TEK

Sacred Ecology Fikret Berkes,1999 This text deals with the topic of traditional ecological knowledge in the context of natural resource management and treats it as a knowledge practice belief complex
