Water Resource Conflicts and International Security Dharendra K. Vajpeyi, 2012-01-01 Water Resource Conflicts and International Security A Global Perspective is an edited collection by Dharendra K Vajpeyi which analyzes the increasing global demand for water in economic and social development and the dire need to efficiently manage this vital natural resource particularly in water scarce countries in the Middle East Asia and Africa Several environmental and human induced factors such as urbanization industrialization climate change and agricultural needs have created a near crisis situation in many countries Subsequently there is an increasingly intense competition to utilize available water resources in these most heavily affected regions transboundary rivers lakes and streams which are shared by more than one country pose potential for political conflict armed conflict and in the best of cases cooperation The contributors of Water Resource Conflicts and International Security present ten case studies in seven chapters highlighting the competition between countries in Asia Africa and the Middle East In his conclusion Dharendra K Vajpeyi suggests several policy measures that governments may implement in order to minimize the potential for conflict Water Scarcity and Conflict in African River Basins Mahlakeng Khosi Mahlakeng, 2023-03-31 The book presents a critical and comparative analysis of the hydropolitical landscape of African transboundary river basins which for much of the past century have been affected by water scarcity River and lake basins can become a source of tension and conflict due to a complicated mix of environmental demographic diplomatic historical and geopolitical factors This book however specifically focuses on the important and often under looked role played by scarcity in generating or exacerbating conflicts in shared river basins Asserting that transboundary river basins tie states into a web of interdependence this book raises awareness of how water scarcity or the depletion of water resources complicates this relationship as nations are forced to look beyond their own borders to meet the demand for water to satisfy multiple needs Taking a comparative approach it examines three shared basins the Orange Senqu the Nile and the Niger River basins While situated in different regions all three basins are marked by serious environmental challenges that are detrimental to combustible hydropolitics over such shared water resources and they provide fascinating insights into the links between climate variability and change water resources human security conflict adaptation and regime capacity Overall this book argues that conflict over transboundary resources can be prevented given the establishment of norms rules and the role of external actors that help regulate state behaviour and control their impacts This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of water resource management hydropolitics environmental conflict resource scarcity and international relations It will also be of interest to policymakers involved in transboundary water resource governance Environmental Conditions, Resources, and Conflicts Daniel M. Schwartz (Author of Crime and intelligence analysis in Canada), 1999 Water Velma I. Grover, 2007-07 This volume describes various scenarios of conflict and cooperation over water resources among stakeholders in a variety of settings It discusses treaty making over international rivers bilateral cooperation on river development between South Africa and Lesotho the political economy of water supply in the Pacific Island region the establishment of the Mekong River Commission in Southeast Asia comparative river basin management in the United States and South Korea and the International Joint Commission formed by Canada and the United States to resolve boundary water conflicts The book also explores national domestic conflicts over water resources in Bangladesh and China Cold War hydropolitics in Southern Africa water management conflicts in the Niger River Basin of West Africa and water as commodity and source of conflict in Australia

Conflict, Cooperation and Institutions in International Water Management Ines Dombrowsky, 2007 Develops a conceptual framework that draws upon different economic theories including the theory of external effects non cooperative game theory and transaction costs economics This book distinguishes different types of externality problems inherent in international water management and specifies the institutional prerequisites for cooperation

Population and Security: Water disputes - on the way to a major global problem? Felix Seidler, 2009-10-22 Scientific Essay from the year 2009 in the subject Politics Environmental Policy grade 25 von 40 Punkten The University of Sydney Center for International Security Studies course CISS6008 Population and Security language English abstract Water is the base of all human existence First of all for drinking food production and hygiene but also for all other developments of contemporaries human society The United Nations has estimated world population would grow from 6 to 9.3 billion between 50 years and beside this people are getting wealthier Thus can be no doubt of a rising global demand for freshwater but climate change and other environmental factors will lead to short run of water in certain regions In consequence water can be predicted to become a security issue and a reason for conflict as it even may be today in some regions Only 2.5% of all water on the earth is freshwater 70% of this freshwater is frozen at North and South Pole 29% are bonded not accessible for mankind as soil moisture and in underground aquifers About 1% 0.007% of all water is useable for mankind but water is renewable resource This numbers underline the importance of the question if it is possible supplying all humans with enough water or if water may lead to conflict Chapter 2 will discuss the questions of waters potential as a reason for dispute conflict or peaceful development Dispute is to understand as a political issue while conflict could further mean use of other elements than political including force Connected to this Chapter 3 will analyse how water disputes and fertility mortality and migration relate to each other This is important because developments of the last three factors are highly dependent on fresh water accessibility As examples for today's water disputes two case studies on Israel Jordan Syria Lebanon and Turkey Syria Iraq will be made Even if such an answer is difficult to make chapter 5 will try to answer the main question if water will become a major security problem in the 21st century and if water disputes will lead to conflicts In context of population growth and climate change this will be an important topic for 21st centuries politics The terms conflict or major conflict do necessarily contain war or violence Water disputes could possibly lead to violent conflict but when the term conflict is used here it means conflict in general and not specifically war or violence

Conflict

Prevention and Resolution in Water Systems Aaron T. Wolf, 2002 This important collection reprints the most significant papers and case studies on the prevention and resolution of conflict over water resources It focuses in particular on the human dynamics that are involved when conflicts over water resources impact on different interest groups economic sectors and legal or political boundaries It addresses key issues which arise at both the local and the international level including amongst others How do people interact in these situations of conflict What methods do they use to find a compromise What institutions do they create either jointly or unilaterally to help overcome problems in the future This interdisciplinary collection will be essential reading for professional water practitioners throughout the world including engineers economists geographers geologists and political scientists concerned with water disputes and conflict resolution It will make a significant contribution to the study of water as an essential theme in the increasingly important topic of environmental security
