

TRANSISTOR SUBSTITUTION MANUAL

1. This manual is intended for use by technicians who are familiar with the basic principles of transistor operation and substitution. It is not intended for use by novices.

2. The purpose of this manual is to provide a systematic method for identifying and substituting transistors in electronic equipment. It is based on the principle of "like-for-like" substitution.

3. The manual is divided into two main sections: "Identification" and "Substitution". The "Identification" section provides a systematic method for identifying the type of transistor used in a particular circuit. The "Substitution" section provides a systematic method for substituting a transistor of the same type as the one being replaced.

4. The manual is based on the principle of "like-for-like" substitution. This means that a transistor of the same type as the one being replaced should be used in its place. This is the most reliable method of substitution.

5. The manual is based on the principle of "like-for-like" substitution. This means that a transistor of the same type as the one being replaced should be used in its place. This is the most reliable method of substitution.
