Queering Translation History Eva Spišáková, 2021-06-29 This innovative work challenges normative binaries in contemporary translation studies and applies frameworks from queer historiography to the discipline in order to explore shifting perceptions of same sex love and desire in translations and retranslations of William Shakespeare's Sonnets The book brings together perspectives from poststructuralism queer theory and translation history to set the stage for an in depth exploration of a series of retranslations of the Sonnets from the Czech Republic and Slovakia The complex and poetic language of the Sonnets frequently built around era specific idioms and allusions has produced a number of different interpretations of the work over the centuries but questions remain as to how the translation process may omit retain or enhance elements of same sex love in retranslated works across time and geographical borders In focusing on target cultures which experienced dramatic sociopolitical changes over the course of the twentieth century and comparing retranslations originating from these contexts Spišáková finds the ideal backdrop in which to draw parallels between changing developments in power and social structures and shifting translation strategies related to the representation of gender identities and sexual orientations beyond what is perceived to be normative In so doing the book advocates for a queer perspective on the study of translation history and encourages questioning traditional boundaries prevalent in the discipline making this key reading for students and researchers in translation studies queer theory and gender studies as well as those interested in historical developments in Central and Eastern Europe The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

Michelle Woods, 2012-05-10 A play is written, faces censorship and is banned in its native country. There is strong international interest; the play is translated into English, it is adapted, and it is not performed. Censoring Translation questions the role of textual translation practices in shaping the circulation and reception of foreign censored theatre. It examines three forms of censorship in relation to translation: ideological censorship, gender censorship, and market censorship. This examination of censorship is informed by extensive archival evidence from the previously unseen archives of Václav Havel's main theatre translator, Vera Blackwell, which includes drafts of playscripts, legal negotiations, reviews, interviews, notes, and previously unseen correspondence over thirty years with Havel and central figures of the theatre world such as Kenneth Tynan, Martin Esslin, and Tom Stoppard. Michelle Woods uses this previously unresearched archive to explore broader questions on censorship, asking why texts are translated at a given time, who translates them, how their identity may affect the translation, and how the constituents of success in a target culture may involve elements of censorship. The Power of the Pen Denise Merkle, 2010 This interdisciplinary collection investigates the relations between translation and different forms and systems of censorship that were operating in nineteenth-century Europe. The volume presents and discusses broadly the research findings of translation studies scholars from a total of nine countries. Contributors have studied not only the apparatus of power that enforces censorship but also the symbolic dimension that, as well as being inherent to systems, is also an explicit activity on the part of decision makers. The nineteenth century has been very neglected in studies of translation censorship to date. This volume addresses this gap in research, showing how discourse was filtered by official and unofficial censorship mechanisms against a background of massive political and technological change. The volume brings together eleven essays on censorship of literature, philosophy, and the press in Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Portugal, Russia, and Spain.
