Translation In Asia Theories Practices Histories:

Translation in Asia Ronit Ricci, Jan van der Putten, 2014-04-08 The field of translation studies was largely formed on the basis of modern Western notions of monolingual nations with print literate societies and monochrome cultures A significant number of societies in Asia and their translation traditions have diverged markedly from this model With their often multilingual populations and maintaining a highly oral orientation in the transmission of cultural knowledge many Asian societies have sustained alternative notions of what text original and translation may mean and have often emphasized performance and change rather than simple copying or transference The contributions in Translation in Asia present exciting new windows into South and Southeast Asian translation traditions and their vast array of shared inter connected and overlapping ideas about and practices of translation transmitted between these two regions over centuries of contact and exchange Drawing on translation traditions rarely acknowledged within translation studies debates including Tagalog Tamil Kannada Malay Hindi Javanese Telugu and Malayalam the essays in this volume engage with myriad interactions of translation and religion colonialism and performance and provide insight into alternative conceptualizations of translation across periods and locales The understanding gained from these diverse perspectives will contribute to complicate and expand the conversations unfolding in an emerging international translation studies

Translational Politics in Southeast Asian Literatures Grace V. S. PNHS Newsletter ,2012-10 Words in Motion Keith Foulcher, Mikihiro Moriyama, Manneke Budiman, 2012 Political changes since the fall of the Suharto regime in 1998 have had a significant impact on linguistic and discursive practices in Indonesia The language policy of the state has become less restrictive than in the past when Indonesian Bahasa Indonesia was vigorously promoted as one of the symbols of the unity of the country s diverse ethnic groups Monolingualism in public space has given way to more fluid and pluralistic language use and regional autonomy legislation enacted in 1999 has encouraged expressions of regional identities and aspirations opening up a space for the promotion and use of regional languages in the media education and the bureaucracy Concurrently technological development in particular widespread access to the internet has exposed Indonesian society much more directly than before to global flows of information giving rise to changes stemming in part from sources outside Indonesia but interpreted and shaped according to local conditions and socio cultural practices The meeting of these two vectors one generated internally and the other coming from exposure to global trends is producing a situation of diversity fluidity and change in language use and discursive practice in contemporary Indonesian society While contributors to this volume discuss Indonesian language expression at the national level a particular focus of the collection is on regional local and minority languages where problems associated with decentralization find their counterpart in the role that language plays in the workings of regional and national identity politics
