London's Curse Mark Beynon,2011-10-31 Throughout the 1920s and 1930s London was gripped by the supposed curse of Tutankhamun whose tomb in the Luxor sands was uncovered in February 1923 by the British archaeologist Howard Carter The site was plundered and over the next few years more than twenty of those involved in the exhumation or in handling the contents of the tomb perished in strange and often terrifying circumstances prompting the myth of the Curse of Tutankhamun Nowhere particularly London s West End appeared to be safe for those who had provoked the ire of the Egyptian death gods A blend of meticulous research and educated conjecture historian and screenwriter Mark Beynon turns armchair detective as he uncovers a wealth of hitherto unpublished material that lays bare the truth behind these fatalities Could London s Curse be attributed to the work of a macabre mastermind It soon becomes apparent that these deaths were not only linked by the ominous presence of Tutankhamun himself but also by a murderer hell bent on retribution and dubbed by the press as The Wickedest Man in the World

The Authoritarian International Stephen G. F. Hall,2023-05-25 Stephen Hall argues that democracies can preserve their norms and values from increasing attacks and backsliding by better understanding how authoritarian regimes learn He focuses on the post Soviet region investigating two established authoritarian regimes Belarus and Russia and two hybrid regimes Moldova and Ukraine with the aim of explaining the concept of authoritarian learning and revealing the practices that are developed and the sources of that learning Hall finds clear signs of collaboration between countries in developing best survival practices between authoritarian minded elites and demonstrates that learning does not just occur between states rather it can happen at the intra state level with elites learning lessons from previous regimes in their own countries He highlights the horizontal nature of this learning with authoritarian minded elites developing methods from a range of sources to ascertain the best practices for survival Post Soviet regional organisations are crucial for the development and sharing of these survival practices as they provide learning rooms and training exercises
