The Judge gives the jury instructions from offstage, setting the scene as the lights come up. He (or she) lays out the stakes: a man has died and the defendant's life is in their hands. He informs the jurors that they must find the defendant not guilty if there is a reasonable doubt that he is guilty. The vote must be unanimous. He ends by impressing the weight of their "grave" responsibility on them: they must deliberate "honestly and thoughtfully."
Lights come up on the jury room. The room contains twelve "uncomfortable-looking" straight chairs, a clock, a water cooler, a garbage can, a single window and door, and nothing else. The Guard opens the window, surveys the room, and moves upstage to count the jurors as they enter.
