Stone, 2007 This book is an examination of recent developments in the areas of youth justice and child protection It investigates how well young people and the societies in which they live are served by judicial and service systems Consideration is given to those in care in young offenders institutions foster families and residential homes as well as those living with their families A broad range of international experts discuss the largely segregated youth justice and children s legal and service systems in England and Wales other parts of Western Europe and the US and compare these with Scotland s integrated system The implications of these arrangements are considered for the rights of children and parents on the one hand and society on the other The contributors also provide insights into the rationale for current and proposed policies as well as the efficacy of different systems This book will be an important reference for policy makers social workers lawyers magistrates and equivalent decision makers health professionals carers and all those working in youth justice and child protection It is highly relevant for academics and students interested in children citizenship youth crime child welfare and state family relations

White, 2013-11-11 When approached by Plenum to put together a volume of social science research on the topic of youth and justice I found the interdisciplinary challenge of such a project intriguing Having spent 2 years as Director of the Law and Social Science Program at the National Science Foundation I was well aware of the rich diversity of research that could fit within that topic I also knew that excellent research on youth and justice was coming from different communities of researchers who often were isolated from each other in their respective disciplines as psychologists sociologists criminologists or policy analysts I saw this project as an opportunity to break down some of this isolation by introducing these researchers and their work to each other and to the broader community of social scientists interested in law and justice There was another gap or set of gaps to be bridged as well The juvenile justice system and the criminal justice system differ in significant ways and the civil justice system which is a major venue for issues of youth and justice is yet another separate world Few researchers are likely to know the whole picture For example a focus on juvenile justice often ignores the extent to which civil justice proceedings shape the lives of young people through divorce custody adoption family preservation policies and other actions and vice versa Youth and the Law Susan Reid, Laurence M. Olivo, 2019-02

Piper,2013-05-13 This book brings together insights from a range of disciplines including law sociology criminology and history to identify and explain the complex and inter related factors which help or hinder the state to invest in children and young people The first part of the book examines the intangibles the ideologies social constructions and moral precepts which obstruct or encourage the passage and full implementation of legislation policy and practice which hopes to improve the lives and prospects of children and young people Notions of family and parental responsibility assumptions about what children and young people are and the extent to which they should be held accountable and ideas around state investment against future risks are the key factors considered The second part of the book focuses on the difficulties in practice of implementing policies aimed at investing in children s lives and futures It reviews the role of science in the identification of risk factors related to poor outcomes for children and in the selection of target groups or areas for risk based intervention to provide early support and preventative programmes for children and their families It also assesses whether and how law does or could help to deliver an appropriate investment of time and money in children with a focus on the existence and effectiveness of a rights based approach The final chapters examine the results of research so far undertaken done on selected programmes in the Every Child Matters social inclusion and Youth Justice Board policy agendas and they indentify promising developments However they also draw attention to the alternative agendas around children and young people which are competing for government money and the public s support and warn that there are dangers in a child focused policy whose justification relies so heavily on future cost savings stemming from the production of healthier more employable and law abiding adults
