

A movie poster for 'The Time Traveler's Wife'. The image features a close-up of a man (Eric Bana) and a woman (Rachel McAdams) in a romantic embrace. The woman is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile, while the man is resting his head on her shoulder, looking down. The background is a soft-focus bokeh of warm yellow and orange lights. The title 'The Time Traveler's Wife' is prominently displayed in a large, elegant serif font. Above the title, the names of the lead actors are listed. Below the title, it says 'From The Acclaimed Bestseller'. In the bottom right corner, there is a block of smaller text providing production credits, and at the very bottom, the release date 'August 14' is shown.

Hetero Sean Griffin, 2009-05-07 Just as feminist scholars have turned to considerations of masculinity and scholars of race have begun to consider whiteness as a category this collection brings the insights of queer theory to bear on cinematic representations of straightness Spanning decades and cultures from silent Hollywood films to modern Mumbai cinema the essays in Hetero uncover multiple forms of heterosexual desire and demonstrate that heterosexuality is in fact a heavily contested terrain Movies often become a place where one specific heteronormative ideal is upheld as proper while other types of heterosexuality are denied or pathologized By investigating how heterosexuality functions as a social construct these essays deconstruct normative heterosexuality s simultaneous omnipresence and invisibility effectively breaking down the barriers of sexual identity Hetero offers a collective call to expand the ways in which queer theory is applied and put into practical use and exposes the queer nature of the love that does dare speak its name

Diseases and Disorders in Contemporary Fiction James Peacock, Tim Lustig, 2013-04-17 The essays in this collection address the current preoccupation with neurological conditions and disorders in contemporary literature by British and American writers The book places these fictional treatments within a broader cultural and historical context exploring such topics as the two cultures debate the neurological turn postmodernism and the post postmodern and responses to September 11th Considering a variety of materials including mainstream literary fiction the graphic novel popular fiction autobiographical writing film and television contributors consider the contemporary dimensions of the interface between the sciences and humanities developing the debate about the post postmodern as a new humanism or a return to realism and investigating questions of form and genre and of literary continuities and discontinuities Further the essays discuss contemporary writers attempts to engage the relation between the individual and the social looking at the relation between the syndrome referring to the prevalence in contemporary literature of neurological phenomena evident at the biological level and existing work in the field of trauma studies where explanations tend to have taken a psychoanalytical form allowing for perspectives that question some of the assumptions that have marked both these fields. The current literary preoccupation with neurological conditions presents us with a new and distinctive form of trauma literature, one concerned less with psychoanalysis than with the physical and evolutionary status of human beings.

The Space War ZHANG RAN and others, The Great Dreamer sci fi classic series includes four works: Fall of Civilization, The Space War, The Lover's Farewell, and The Whale Rider. Since Liu Cixin's The Three Body Problem won the Hugo Award and the domestic sci fi film The Wandering Earth gained popularity, Chinese sci fi literature once quiet has entered a vibrant and flourishing era. Many works have been included in language textbooks and frequently appear in middle and high school language exams. Chen Qiufan, Zhang Ran, Bao Shu, and AQue, four visionary young sci fi writers, are recognized as leaders of China's sci fi golden generation. Their works differ from the historical context and knowledge systems of Wang Jinkang and Liu Cixin, offering more innovative and imaginative insights that cater to the tastes of new generation readers. Among these, The Space War is a quintessential collection of hard sci fi classics in the Zhang Ran style. It includes seven works: When the Sun Falls, Homecoming, The Cramped City, Goodbye Doraemon, Emotional Fallacies, Welcome to Samna, and Three Stories of Humans and Dogs. The collection features a diverse range of styles from warm to cold, with strong visual and immersive elements. The stories depict future space military battles illustrating a scene where one day when you gaze at the sky, the burning fire is neither the apocalypse nor a dream, but a new battlefield of human desire.

Science Fiction examines in one volume how science has propelled science fiction and to a lesser extent how science fiction has influenced the sciences. Although coverage will discuss the science behind the fiction from the Classical Age to the present, focus is naturally on the 19th century to the present when the Industrial Revolution and spectacular progress in science and technology triggered an influx of science fiction works speculating on the future. As scientific developments alter expectations for the future, the literature absorbs, uses, and adapts such contextual visions. The goal of the Encyclopedia is not to present a catalog of sciences and their application in literary fiction but rather to study the ongoing flow and counterflow of influences, including how fictional representations of science affect how we view its practice and disciplines. Although the main focus is on literature, other forms of science fiction, including film and video games, are explored, and because science is an international matter, works from non-English speaking countries are discussed as needed.
