Cristina Bodinger-deUriarte

Twenty Five Hours A Day Embracing The Internet Generation:

Twenty Five Hours a Day Brandon Shaw, 2012-11-17 Twenty Five Hours a Day is the story of what it's like to embrace harness and excel in the Internet Generation Based on research narratives and interviews with experts in the fields of parenting academia disciplinary action social and digital media executive leadership public relations and University operations the book combines each of these elements into a fictional narrative to underscore the fact that the whole truly is greater than the sum of the parts Bit by bit fictional narrator Dan Linder tells the story of real life people who have reached out to everyone from celebrities to Fortune 500 executives and Chief Executive Officers utilizing social media but more importantly the cultural implications of interconnectivity which stemmed from the usage of social and digital media Twenty Five Hours a Day is a story of possibility community and an interwoven network that was previously impossible

Generation We Eric H. Greenberg, Karl Weber, 2008 The largest generation in history the Millennial Generation are independent politically socially and philosophically and they are spearheading a period of sweeping change in America and around the world Access to Scientific Research David J. Brown, 2015-11-13 The debate about access to scientific research raises questions about the current effectiveness of scholarly communication processes This book explores from an independent point of view the current state of the STM publishing market new publishing technologies and business models as well as the information habit of researchers the politics of research funders and the demand for scientific research as a public good The book also investigates the democratisation of science including how the information needs of knowledge workers outside academia can be embraced in future

Managing Human Resources for the Millennial Generation William I. Sauser, Ronald R. Sims, 2013-02-01 The purpose of this book is to explore the talents work styles attitudes and issues that members of the Millennial generation are bringing with them as they enter the workforce The Millennial generation is a roughly 20 year cohort of young people whose leading edge members were born in 1982 and graduated high school in 2000 These are the young adults who began entering college the military and the workplace during the present decade and who will continue to do so for perhaps another decade more The Millennial generation has been exposed during their formative years to a unique variety of historical cultural economic and technological changes that have shaped their particular attitudes and values preferred social interaction styles beliefs about what is proper in the workplace and personal concerns and desires Millennials are bringing their unique perspectives into their places of employment where at times they clash with those of the older generations who are already established there

Interfacing Ourselves Cristina Bodinger-deUriarte, 2019-06-04 Interfacing Ourselves consists of new work that examines digital life on three levels individuals and digital identity relationships routinely intertwining digital and physical connections and broader institutional and societal realities that define the context of living in the digital age A key focus is what it means in varied social arenas when most individuals live as co present or multi present simultaneously engaged in digital and physical space alone and with others Topics include how digital life contributes to well being individuals experience digital dependency a smartphone is more than a smartphone netiquette reveals social change some online communities become prosocial salient havens while others reinforce social inequality Millennials build intimacy Latinx do familismo and digital surveillance and big data redefine consumerism advocacy and civic engagement Six chapters incorporate insights from hourly journals of Millennials undergoing a period of digital abstinence Other chapters draw from surveys digital auto ethnography content analysis and other methods to explore digital life at the level of individual and interactive experience and at a broader institutional and societal level Ultimately the book presents the need for living a mindful digital life by developing greater awareness as an individual a social being and a netizen and citizen
