Cultural Identity in Typography Maggie Zeng, 2020 Only a few typefaces are available to graphic designers to express cultural identity I gained experience creating type posters and typeface specimens for Franklin Gothic in my undergraduate studies At that time I noticed that there are many typeface designers trying to remove cultural representation from their typographical design in order to make their designs accessible to a wide audience The purpose of my research is to explore the importance of typography and engage students in the graphic design field to use typeface to represent their cultural identity A set of research questions drive my project How could the current education of typography be improved to better represent cultural identity How do students in art school understand both their cultural histories and heritage in order to use typography to represent identity My action research project took place over two months at the School of Art Institute of Chicago I gave out surveys for 34 undergraduate students enrolled in graphic design classes and interviewed three professors in the Visual Communication Design and Art Education departments Later I set up two 90 minutes workshops for students who designed their own typeface One workshop was for white students the other one was only for Chinese international students Both of the two groups are undergraduate students at the School of Art Institute of Chicago who have basic graphic design skills They used different materials to redesign letters e d o g v on 10in x 10in cards I collected data from surveys and interviews recorded observation notes during the workshops I also took photos of workshops interactions The students artworks were essential to my research and written reflections My workshop challenged their expectations for understanding of typography and helped them use typography as an expression of cultural identity
