

Throwing the Body Into the Fight: The Body as an Instrument in Political Art

Max Ryyänen

Abstract: Thinking about the body in contemporary art leads easily to an exaggerated focus on extremities and excess. Beginning from Pier Paolo Pasolini's violently radical life, and ending up in Martin Jay's critique of Richard Shusterman's somaesthetics, the first part of this article discusses different conceptions regarding the role of the body in art. I aspire to show the need to rearticulate the role of the body in contemporary art. In the second part of the article I will turn the focus to rather small or moderate acts of political art, where artists put themselves and their bodies at stake. My aspiration is to bridge somaesthetics to one of the major trends in contemporary art, the practice of political and social work. Through its interest in the golden mean and everyday life, somaesthetics provides a resonate philosophical frame for discussing performances and events typical for e.g. community art and political activist art, where the body, I claim, has an important, though quite unnoticed role.

Keywords: Pasolini, body art, political art, performance, art theory.

I

From time to time, Pier Paolo Pasolini's poetic expression "I want to express myself by throwing my body into the fight" finds its way back to art talk. As an excerpt from the posthumously published poem Poeta delle Ceneri (1966), it has inspired artists and art theorists already for decades.¹ Pasolini himself was a poet, filmmaker, playwright and theorist whose art always had a political agenda. He

1 See e.g. Patrick Steffen in his and Alma Razi's interview with Lynda Benglis in Flash Art International November-December 2011 ("Lynda Benglis"). The most famous artist to use Pasolini's expression has been Raimund Hoghe. Hoghe has used it as a one-sentence manifesto in performances where he exhibits his physically challenged body and 'writes' (as he says) with it by e.g. performing static gestures. Forever Thrown Kathleen Brooks,2021-08-24 Everything Porter Davies has worked for is about to be ripped away from him with one throw from a rodeo horse The hits don t stop there either He d known they d come for him one day His father had been the best spy back in his day and they d been keeping tabs on Porter since he was eighteen It ll be just one job they tell him now but it s never that simple when the one job is Willa Alderidge Willa Alderidge s father is one of the most famous tech geniuses in the world but Willa was never one to sit back and take what she didn t earn She worked hard to graduate at the top of her class and fought her way up the corporate ladder to become the vice president of her father s company The one place she found solace was show jumping Out there she wasn t an heiress and her ability wasn t constantly questioned Instead she was just another jumper Until one day everything in her life changed An unknown man threatens Willa and those she loves for access to her company s confidential and powerful technology She thinks everything she s worked so hard for is lost when faced with a no win scenario unfolding around her That s when Porter Davies falls into her lap literally Can a rough rodeo rider and an elegant show jumper join together to save more than each other
