Young Minds In Social Worlds Experience Meaning And Memory:

Young Minds in Social Worlds Katherine Nelson, 2010-03-30 Katherine Nelson re-centers developmental psychology with a revived emphasis on development and change rather than foundations and continuity. She argues that children be seen not as scientists but as members of a community of minds striving not only to make sense but also to share meanings with others. A child is always part of a social world yet the child's experience is private. So Nelson argues we must study children in the context of the relationships, interactive language and culture of their everyday lives. Nelson draws philosophically from pragmatism and phenomenology and empirically from a range of developmental research. Skeptical of work that focuses on presumed innate abilities and the close fit of child and adult forms of cognition, her dynamic framework takes into account whole systems developing over time, presenting a coherent account of social, cognitive and linguistic development in the first five years of life. Nelson argues that a child's entrance into the community of minds is a slow, gradual process with enormous consequences for child development and the adults that they become. Original, deeply scholarly and trenchant, Young Minds in Social Worlds will inspire a new generation of developmental psychologists. The Transformative Mind Anna Stetsenko, 2017 This book's innovative transformative stance revives the critical activist gist of Vygotsky's project to move beyond theoretical ideological canons in addressing the crisis of inequality. National Service: Life Stories Peter Gurney, Matthew Grant, Joel Morley, 2025-01-25 National service was a defining feature for a generation of young men in post-war Britain. Around 2.3 million of them were called up between the end of World War Two and 1963 when conscription ended. However, national service was forgotten almost before it had ended, a process aided subsequently by professional historians who have been reluctant to assess its longer-term influence on British social and political history. Based on original oral interviews with well over one hundred men, this book explores the ways in which compulsory military participation reverberated in the memories of interviewees long beyond the end of conscription and how these early military experiences shaped their later life stories. Unlike existing accounts that tend to rely on memoirs written by officers or else oral interviews that concentrate narrowly on the details of military service, this study focusses instead on men from working-class backgrounds and it situates national service in the context of the life course and the wider transformations that have occurred in British society since conscription ended. In so doing, the work shines new light on important areas of current scholarly interest and historiographical concern, including the changing meaning and experience of class, masculinity and citizenship as well as the complexities of popular memory. Human Development and Political Violence Colette Daiute, 2010-04-26 Human Development and Political Violence presents an innovative approach to research and practice with young people growing up in the context of political violence. Based on developmental theory, this book explains and illustrates how children and youth interact with environments defined by war, armed conflict and the aftermath involving displacement, poverty, political instability and personal loss. The case study for this inquiry was a research workshop in four countries of the former Yugoslavia where youth aged 12 to 27 participated in activities designed to promote their development The theory based Dynamic Story Telling by Youth workshop engaged participants as social historians and critics sharing their experiences via narratives evaluations of society letters to public officials debates and collaborative inquiries Analyses of these youth perspectives augment archival materials and researcher field notes to offer insights about developmental strategies for dealing with the threats and opportunities of war and major political change

Vital Memory and Affect Steven Brown, Paula Reavey, 2015-06-12 Vital Memory and Affect takes as its subject the autobiographical memories of vulnerable groups including survivors of child sexual abuse adopted children and their families forensic mental health service users and elderly persons in care home settings In particular the focus is on a particular class of memory within this group recollected episodes that are difficult and painful sometimes contested but always with enormous significance for a current and past sense of self These vital memories integral and irreversible can come to appear as a defining feature of a person's life In Vital Memory and Affect authors Steve Brown and Paula Reavey explore the highly productive way in which individuals make sense of a difficult past situated as they are within a highly specific cultural and social landscape Via an exploration of their vital memories the book combines insights from social and cognitive psychology to open up the possibility of a new approach to memory one that pays full attention to the contextual conditions of all acts of remembering This path breaking study brings together a unique set of empirical material and maps out an agenda for research into memory and affect that will be important reading for students and scholars of social psychology memory studies cultural studies philosophy and other related fields

The Cambridge Handbook of Sociocultural Psychology Alberto Rosa, Jaan Valsiner, 2018-07-12 Sociocultural psychology is a discipline located at the crossroads between the natural and social sciences and the humanities This international overview of the field provides an antireductionist and comprehensive account of how experience and behaviour arise from human action with cultural materials in social practices The outcome is a vision of the dynamics of sociocultural and personal life in which time and developmental constructive transformations are crucial This second edition provides expanded coverage of how particular cultural artefacts and social practices shape experience and behaviour in the realms of art and aesthetics economics history religion and politics Special attention is also paid to the development of identity the self and personhood throughout the lifespan while retaining the emphasis on experience and development as key features of sociocultural psychology

Places for Two-year-olds in the Early Years Jan Georgeson, Verity Campbell-Barr, 2017-12-12 Grounded in recent research on the challenges of working with two year olds Places for Two year olds in the Early Years explores how this often overlooked age group is presented in policy and practice and discusses why working with two year olds can be both exciting and highly rewarding The book builds on theoretical understandings of child development high quality provision and pedagogical practice to offer practical solutions for working effectively with two year olds and their families in a variety of early years settings Chapters focus on the specific needs of two year olds and the accompanying demands made on settings and practitioners Many topics are also approached from a practical perspective prompting readers to consider their own experiences of working with two year olds The book explores understandings of high quality education and care varying workforce requirements and professional development how practitioners develop knowledge s about working with two year olds physical and social environments for two year olds the role of the adult or key person in supporting children s development provision of services for disadvantaged two year olds With reflective questions and annotated further reading included throughout Places for Two year olds in the Early Years is essential reading for practitioners policy makers and students involved in this often overlooked area of early years provision

Reflective Thinking in Educational Settings Alessandro Antonietti, Emanuela Confalonieri, Antonella Marchetti, 2014-02-28 This volume examines the role that culture plays in the acquisition of cognitive linguistic and social skills Taking reflective thinking as a central analytical concept the contributors investigate the role of personal reflection in a series of mental activities including the creation of social relationships the creation of a mental narrative to make sense of events and metacognition These three types of cognition are usually conceived of as separate research fields Metarepresentation and Narrative in Educational Settings draws these discrete subfields into dialogue exploring the connections and interplay among them This approach yields insight into a range of topics including language acquisition cognitive processes Theory of Mind cross cultural interaction and social development The volume also outlines the implications of these findings in terms of further research and possible social policy initiatives

Beyond the Archive Jens Brockmeier, 2015-08-04 Our longstanding view of memory and remembering is in the midst of a profound transformation This transformation does not only affect our concept of memory or a particular idea of how we remember and forget it is a wider cultural process. In order to understand it one must step back and consider what is meant when we say memory. Brockmeier's far ranging studies offer such a perspective synthesizing understandings of remembering from the neurosciences, humanities, social studies and in key works of autobiographical literature and life writing. His conclusions force us to radically rethink our very notion of memory as an archive of the past, one that suggests the natural existence of a distinctive human capacity or a set of neuronal systems enabling us to encode, store and recall past experiences. Now propelled by new scientific insights and digital technologies a new picture is emerging. It shows that there are many cultural forms of remembering and forgetting embedded in a broad spectrum of human activities and artifacts. This picture is more complex than any notion of memory as storage of the past would allow. Indeed it comes with a number of alternatives to the archival memory, one of which Brockmeier describes as the narrative approach. The narrative approach not only permits us to explore the storied weave of our most personal form of remembering, that is the autobiographical, it also sheds new light on the interrelations among memory, self and culture.
