childhood medication by New York Times bestselling author Judith Warner In Perfect Madness Motherhood in the Age of Anxiety the bestselling author and former New York Times columnist Judith Warner explained what's gone wrong with the culture of parenting and her conclusions sparked a national debate on how women and society view motherhood Her new book We've Got Issues Children and Parents in the Age of Medication will generate the same kind of controversy as she tackles a subject that's just as contentious and important Are parents and physicians too quick to prescribe medication to control our children's behavior Are we using drugs to excuse inept parents who can't raise their children properly What Warner discovered from the extensive research and interviewing she did for this book is that passion on both sides of the issue is ideological and only tangentially about real children and she cuts through the jargon and hysteria to delve into a topic that for millions of parents involves one of the most important decisions they'll ever make for their child Insightful compelling and deeply moving We've Got Issues is for parents doctors and teachers anyone who cares about the welfare of today's children functions of these systems makes sense of many aspects of history politics economics and popular culture What drove the Protestant Reformation Why have the Beatles The Hunger Games and paranoid science fiction thrived and how was hip hop co opted What alliances helped neoliberalism out compete Communism and what alliances might enable environmentalism to overcome consumerism Why are multiculturalism and university trained elites provoking working class nationalist backlash In a digital age how can we use numbers without having them use us instead Anyone who has wondered how our species can be so brilliant and so stupid at the same time may find an answer here human mentalities are so complex that we crave the simplifications provided by our cultures but the cultures that thrive are the ones that blind us to any interests that don t correspond to their own
