The United States And China Competing Discourses Of Regionalism In East Asia:

The United States and China Narayani Basu, 2015 The United States and China Narayani Basu, 2015-10-05 With its long history of internal divisiveness and its intersecting cultural and linguistic cleavages East Asia is undoubtedly a complex area. However, the idea of East Asia as a regional entity is one that is relatively recent, a concept that gained momentum after the financial crisis that rocked the region in the 1990s. In recent years, East Asia has become considerably more interdependent, connected, and cohesive. This increased cohesiveness has been driven by a dense network of trade and investments, technology sharing, and communication among many other variables, and has been reflected in the increasing institutionalisation of regional mechanisms like the ASEAN. Regionalism is not, however, entirely about economic interdependence. In today's day and age, it means not only overarching social networks and a regional identity but also strategic thinking that recognises common security interests. This book takes into account the regional discourses of two of East Asia's biggest players, the United States and China. While the former has been a power to reckon with, albeit externally deeply entrenched in the region since the end of the Second World War, the rise of China in the 21st century and its emergence as the largest power in East Asia has brought a new perspective to East Asian regionalism. In 2010, the United States began reasserting itself in East Asia, bringing into sharp focus the ideological differences between itself and China as each vied to shape the architecture of East Asian security. There is no doubt that heightened American interest comes at a time when China's own views of regionalism have become noticeably less cooperative. While balance of power politics is one way to look at the geopolitical tug of war in East Asia, there are questions that have not yet been answered: How do the two countries look at a region that is so important for them? How has that perception influenced their foreign policy within the same arena? More importantly, how do they define East Asia? This book studies American and Chinese regional discourses from the end of the Cold War to the present day in order to highlight the rationale behind the natural balance of power politics between an established power and a rising one and its subsequent effects on security regionalism in East Asia.

Meaning Generation in Chinese Official Media Discourse Lutgard Lams, Rui Zhang, Emma Lupano, 2025-06-09 Drawing on approaches from Linguistic Pragmatics, Critical Discourse Analysis, Conceptual Metaphor Theory, Social Actor Representation Theory, and Framing Theory, this book critically explores the various linguistic devices and pragmatic strategies that concern meaning generation in the context of Chinese official media discourse. The volume rests on eight chapters that use different analytical lenses, with either a culture-specific perspective or a cross-cultural one, to take language analysis as their point of departure in order to investigate how meaning is generated in situated discourse, such as media accounts about specific issues within the socio-political, cultural, or economic sphere. Each chapter is empirically grounded and either focuses on a specific genre, such as the documentary and the press conference, or explores social and political events and initiatives that have been topical in recent years: the Covid-19 and SARS crises, the US-China trade conflict, the Regional Comprehensive

Economic Partnership RCEP and the 2021 Hong Kong electoral system reform By bringing back the linguistic analysis to the core of the analytical approach the volume shows the interconnection of text and context reminding the reader about the key role of language users both on the production and reception side This book will be of interest to students and scholars interested in the relation between language and politics and in particular in understanding meaning making and meaning moulding processes in discourses articulated in an official Chinese context aimed both internally and internationally

Routledge Handbook of New Media in Asia Larissa Hjorth,Olivia Khoo,2015-11-06 While a decade ago much of the discussion of new media in Asia was couched in Occidental notions of Asia as a default setting for technology in the future today we are seeing a much more complex picture of contesting new media practices and production As new media becomes increasingly an everyday reality for young and old across Asia through smartphones and associated devices boundaries between art new media and the everyday are transformed This Handbook addresses the historical social cultural political philosophical artistic and economic dimensions of the region s new media Through an interdisciplinary revision of both new media and Asia the contributors provide new insights into the complex and contesting terrains of both notions The Routledge Handbook of New Media in Asia will be the definitive publication for readers interested in comprehending all the various aspects of new media in Asia It provides an authoritative up to date intellectually broad conceptually cutting edge guide to the important aspects of new media in the region as the first point of consultation for researchers advanced level
