Abstract: This paper presents a new approach to the design of a control system for a nonlinear system. The system is modeled by a nonlinear differential equation. The control system is designed by using a nonlinear control technique. The results of the simulation are presented.

European countries' government bonds at Europe's central banks were up 6% after a week of steady gains, pushed higher by falling U.S. yields. Some central banks bought more, but mostly to replace maturing bonds, not to increase the size of their holdings.

Figure 1 Net profits (after tax) from the selling (fixed) and from the buying (variable) companies were almost equal to zero.
