Without Warning My Personal Journal Of Struggling With Grief:

Without Warning Jeanie Kaiser, 2013-07 No farewell words were spoken No time to say good bye You were gone before we knew it And only God knows why On June 20 2005 Jeanie Kaiser heard the words from a doctor that no one wants to hear Bad news he didn't make it After 45 years of marriage her husband Bob who had been in good health suffered a mild heart attack This required a heart catheterization and Bob unexpectedly died following the procedure Amidst the intense grief there was confusion anger and questioning God Why did you allow this to happen to someone who took such good care of himself How am I going to survive this new life without my partner his touch his conversation his companionship Will I ever feel normal again Was there something I could have done differently At the suggestion of her sister in law Jeanie writes down her feelings experiences and interactions in a very personal journal that is presented here The hope is that Without Warning My Personal Journal of Struggling with Grief will be a comfort and source of encouragement to others as they work through their own period of loss and grief

memorialization has long been about politics design implications and visitor experience rarely focused upon the people mired in commemorating the dead Profound challenges confront those who memorialize mass trauma at memorial museums Listening to the voices of those called to do this work enables insight into the critical role they play in preserving and disseminating history's most painful narratives expanding views of recovery from mass trauma and revealing the value in the profession As an Andrew W Mellon Fellow at the National September 11 Memorial Museum Dr Stephanie Arel recognized costs psychological spiritual and physical aligned with responding to mass trauma and participating in communal recovery The impact of bearing witness at memorial museums emerged in the lives of workers To explore the phenomenon she visited Auschwitz interviewing those who remember the Holocaust's horrors while resisting its infiltration in their personal lives The immensity of honoring the dead for others inspired additional sojourns in Bosnia Herzegovina Cambodia Israel South Africa and the United States She discovered dimensions of pride and care evident in those who honor memory the capacity of workers to address reverberating political tensions while tending to visitor needs the passion workers have for giving voice to the voiceless who died during traumatic events while offering care and support to the survivors and the reality that reassembling the fragments of mass trauma is not for the weary but instead emerges as a calling and a vocation Bearing Witness places value on what workers do opening space for workers' testimonies to be heard for the first time and creating a global community of and for these workers who have otherwise never been given a platform to speak about their experiences The interviews reveal the entanglement of politics with commemoration the sacredness of remembering and the multidimensional aspects of care transforming the reader's understanding of humanity forever
