Ferguson, A. R. Buck, Nancy E. Wright, 2004-01-01 Women Property and the Letters of the Law in Early Modern England turns to these points of departure for the study of women s legal status and property relationships in the early modern period

Gender and Space in Early Modern England Amanda Flather, 2007 A nuanced re evaluation of the ways in which gender affected the use of physical space in early modern England Space was not simply a passive backdrop to a social system that had structural origins elsewhere it was vitally important for marking out and maintaining the hierarchy that sustained social and gender order in sixteenth and seventeenth century England Gender had a considerable influence on its use and organization status and gender were displayed physically and spatially every moment of the day from a person s place at table to the bed on which he or she slept in places of work and recreation in dress gesture and modes of address Space was also the basis for the formation of gender identities which were constantly contested and restructured as this book shows Examining in turn domestic social and sacred spaces and the spatial division of labour in gender construction the author demonstrates how these could shift and with them the position and power of women She shows that the ideological assumption that all women are subject to all men is flawed and exposes the limitations of interpretations which rely on the model and binary opposition of public private male female to describe gender relations and their changes across the period thus offering a much more complex and picture than has hitherto been perceived The book will be essential reading not just for historians of the family and of women but for all those studying early modern social history AMANDA FLATHER is a lecturer in the Department of History at the University of Essex Women and Urban Life in Eighteenth-Century England Rosemary Sweet, Penelope Lane, 2017-03-02 Despite the considerable volume of research into various aspects of the social and economic cultural and political history of eighteenth century British towns remarkably little has focused upon or even reflected upon the distinctive experience of women in the urban context Much of what research there is has explored the experience of laboring or impoverished women or women of the social elite by contrast the essays in this collection take up the study of the participation of middling women in urban life This volume brings into sharper focus the relationship between changes consequent upon urban development and shifts in the pattern of gender relations in the 18th century The contributors address such themes as the extent to which to what extent urban change accelerated a redefinition of gender relations the connections between urban growth changing definitions of citizenship and the emergence of the male gendered political subject the role of women in a literate consumer and industrializing society the place of women s networks in the economic political and social life of the town and the distinctive role played by women in areas such as philanthropy and business and how the development of urban society in turn inflected contemporary conceptualizations of gender Women and Land Anastasia B. Crosswhite, 1997 Imagining Women's Property in Victorian Fiction Jill Rappoport, 2023 Imagining Women's Property in Victorian Fiction reframes how we think about Victorian women s changing economic rights and their representation in nineteenth century novels The reform of married women s property law between 1856 and 1882 constituted one of the largest economic transformations England had ever seen as well as one of its most significant challenges to family traditions By the end of this period women who had once lost their common law property rights to their husbands reclaimed their own assets regained economic agency and forever altered the legal and theoretical nature of wedlock by doing so Yet in literary accounts reforms were neither as decisive as the law implied nor limited to marriage Legal rights frequently clashed with other family claims and the reallocation of wealth affected far more than spouses or the marital state Competition between wives and children is just one of many ways in which Victorian fiction suggests the perceived benefits and threats of property reform In nineteenth century fiction portrayals of women s claims to ownership provide insight into the social networks forged through property transactions and also offer a lens to examine a wide range of other social matters including testamentary practices wills and copyright law economic and evolutionary models of mutuality the twin dangers of greed and generosity inheritance and custody rights the economic ramifications of loyalty and family obligation and the legacy of nineteenth century economic practices for women today Understanding the reform of married women s property as both an ideologically and materially substantial redistribution of the nation s wealth as well as one complicated by competing cultural traditions this book explores the widespread ways in which women's financial agency was imagined by fiction that engages with but also diverges from the law in accounts of economic choices and transactions. Repeatedly narratives by Austen Dickens Gaskell Trollope Eliot and Oliphant suggest both that the law is inadequate to account for the way that property enables and disrupts relationships and that the form of the Victorian novel in its ability to track intimate and intricate exchanges across generations is better suited to such tasks. The Oxford Companion to Family and Local History David Hey, 2010-02-25 The Oxford Companion to Family and Local History is the most authoritative guide available to all things associated with the family and local history of the British Isles. It provides practical and contextual information for anyone enquiring into their English Irish Scottish or Welsh origins and for anyone working in genealogical research or the social history of the British Isles. This fully revised and updated edition contains over 2 000 entries from adoption to World War records. Recommended web links for many entries are accessed and updated via the Family and Local History companion website. This edition provides guidance on how to research your family tree using the internet and details the full range of online resources available. Newly structured for ease of use thematic articles are followed by the A-Z dictionary and detailed appendices which include further reading. New articles for this edition are A Guide for Beginners Links between British and American Families Black and Asian Family History and an extended feature on Names. With handy research tips a full background to the social history of communities and individuals and an updated appendix listing all national and local record offices with their contact details this is an essential reference work for anyone wanting advice on how to approach genealogical research as well as a fascinating read for anyone interested in the past. Married Women and the Law in Premodern Northwest Europe Cordelia Beattie, Matthew Frank Stevens, 2013 Fresh approaches to how premodern women were viewed in legal terms demonstrating how this varied from country to country and across the centuries. There has been a tendency in scholarship on premodern women and the law to see married women as hidden from view obscured by their husbands in legal records. This volume provides a corrective view arguing that the extent to which the legal principle of coverture applied has been over emphasized. In particular it points up differences between the English common law position which gave husbands guardianship over their wives and their wives property and the position elsewhere in northwest Europe where wives property became part of a community of property. Detailed studies of legal material from medieval and early modern England Wales Scotland Ireland Ghent Sweden Norway and Germany enable a better sense of how when and where the legal principle of coverture was applied and what effect this had on the lives of married women. Key threads running through the book are married women's rights regarding the possession of moveable and immovable property marital property at the dissolution of marriage married women's capacity to act as agents of their husbands and households in transacting business and married women's interactions with the courts. Cordelia Beattie is Senior Lecturer in Medieval History at the University of Edinburgh. Matthew Frank Stevens is Lecturer in Medieval History
