Westwood, 1975 Bulletin, 1929 The National Childhood Encephalopathy Study Nicola Madge, David Millar, 1993-07 This book presents the findings from an extensive follow up report of 1 182 children from the National Childhood Encephalopathy Study conducted in Britain Each of these children had an early neurological illness and each was matched according to age sex and geographical location with two control children For the present follow up the researchers evaluated the survival development and capabilities of 80% of the children from the original study They found that the children's outcomes varied considerably while some appeared fully recovered others were severely impaired The size of the study enabled the researchers to identify those factors that most reliably predicted outcome such as early diagnosis continuing convulsions and age at onset of the illness as well as those factors that did not prove predictive of outcome such as sex and social conditions The researchers also examined the question of whether or not early neurological illness predicted a single syndrome of subsequent impairment They found that on the contrary the children displayed different patterns of longer term difficulties This is a special issue of Developmental Medicine and Child Neurology Learning foreign languages: experiences of persons with disabilities and special educational needs and their teachers Ewa Domagala-Zysk, Jitka Sedláčková, Katarzyna Karpińska-Szaj, 2025-09-22 In many parts of the world it is not a person's native language but a foreign one which is used for education work or entertainment

This is true for many European countries whose inhabitants need to learn English as a foreign language if they want to participate in education or among diverse fields in the workforce. In other parts of the world it might be Spanish, Hindi, Mandarin, Chinese, Arabic, or other languages which will be serving a similar role. This need for learning a second language is understood well in many educational programs including those for students with special educational needs. However, to date, there is not much research of the experiences of persons with diverse additional needs as learners of foreign languages. The most robust literature covers the field of additional language acquisition among Deaf and Hard of Hearing (DHH) people (cf. Domaga & Zyk-Podlowska-Moritz, 2021) and others. Goals, methods, and forms of teaching are fairly well described, and DHH students' needs have been documented extensively. South Indian Teacher, 1949. Bulletin United States.
