Village On The Edge Changing Times In Papua New Guinea:

Village on the Edge Michael French Smith, 2002-06-30 Kragur village lies on the rugged north shore of Kairiru a steep volcanic island just off the north coast of Papua New Guinea In 1998 the village looked much as it had some twenty two years earlier when author Michael French Smith first visited But he soon found that changing circumstances were shaking things up Village on the Edge weaves together the story of Kragur villagers struggle to find their own path toward the future with the story of Papua New Guinea's travails in the post independence era Smith writes of his own experiences as well living and working in Papua New Guinea and trying to understand the complexities of an unfamiliar way of life To tell all these stories he delves into ghosts magic myths ancestors bookkeeping tourism the World Bank the Holy Spirits and the meaning of progress and development Village on the Edge draws on the insights of cultural anthropology but is written for anyone interested in Papua New Guinea

Australia's Arc of Instability Dennis Rumley, Vivian Louis Forbes, Christopher Griffin, 2006-01-12 The idea for this book emerged from a conversation between Vivian Forbes and Charles Eaton following two seminars held in the Department of Geography at the University of Western Australia given by Trevor Soeld and Christopher Griffin more than ve years ago One seminar involved papers from Charles Eaton and Christopher Griffin on the recent Speight coup in Fiji the other given by Trevor Soeld was on the Solomon Islands The seminars were attended by among others Dennis Rumley who on getting involved in the conversation suggested the idea of a book and then followed through on its scope structure planning and possible contributors Looking back now we owe a special debt of gratitude to Charles Eaton both for his enthusiasm and his ideas then and for his continued support throughout the whole project Since that time ve years ago many people have boarded and have left the Arc Indeed the very project itself exhibited a degree of instability At times it even looked as though it might not stay afloat Thankfully several early boarders remained firmly anchored Other authors were co opted later some at relatively short notice one or two of them under mild duress We extend our heartfelt thanks to all of these contributors for remaining patient enthusiastic and keeping faith with the project Naturally a project like this dealing with such a large and dynamic region will always be out of date

The Anthropology of Morality in Melanesia and Beyond Mr John Barker, 2012-12-28 The Anthropology of Morality in Melanesia and Beyond examines how Melanesians experience and deal with moral dilemmas and challenges Taking Kenelm Burridge's seminal work as their starting point the contributors focus upon public situations and types of people that exemplify key ethical contradictions for members of moral communities While returning to some classical concerns such as the roles of big men and sorcerers the book opens new territory with richly textured ethnographic studies and theoretical reviews that explore the interface between the values associated with indigenous village life and the ethical orientations associated with Christianity the state the marketplace and other facets of modernity A major contribution to the emerging field of the anthropology of morality the volume includes some of the most prominent scholars working in the discipline today including Bruce Knauft Joel Robbins F

G Bailey Deborah Gewertz and Frederick Errington Coffee Culture, Destinations and Tourism Lee Jolliffe, 2010 Aspects of global coffee culture are explored as they relate to the settings where the beverage is produced prepared and consumed as part of coffee related tourism Of particular note on the one hand is the potential of such tourism for developing tourism destinations products and experiences while on the other hand improving the livelihoods of coffee producers

Remembering Papua New Guinea William C. Clarke, 2003 The Maring people of Papua New Guinea had their first contact with a European just six years before geographer and anthropologist William C Clarke arrived to spend a year living with them in 1964 By the 1990s after years of storage in tropical climes the photographs Clarke took in PNG had become fungus ridden and faded Computer technology was used to restore the photographs a process that brought back not just visual images of tropical plants red soil and skin made shiny with oil but the smell of moist earth and banana leaves singeing on hot rocks Clarke was transported to a half forgotten world a world he brings back to life in Remembering PNG in which he reflects on the moment captured in each image Looking at his photographs after more than thirty years Clarke says I felt again the warm damp air remembered struggling up the steep muddy tracks heard the yodeling cries with which people communicated over long distances Even the deliciously unique taste of pandanus sauce mixed with crisp young fern leaves came back to me In the book Clarke uses memory and imaginations his observations from the field and even poetry to create a narrative that is as rich and engaging as his superb images Like Fire Theodore Schwartz, Michael French Smith, 2021-07-01 Like Fire chronicles an indigenous movement for radical change in Papua New Guinea from 1946 to the present The movement's founder Paliau Maloat promoted a program for step by step social change in which many of his followers also found hope for a miraculous millenarian transformation Drawing on data collected over several decades Theodore Schwartz and Michael French Smith describe the movement's history Paliau's transformation from secular reformer and politician to Melanesian Jesus and the development of the current incarnation of the movement as Wind Nation a fully millenarian endeavour Their analysis casts doubt on common ways of understanding a characteristically Melanesian form of millenarianism the cargo cult and questions widely accepted ways of interpreting millenarianism in general They show that to understand the human proclivity for millenarianism we must scrutinise more closely two near universal human tendencies difficulty accepting the role of chance or impersonal forces in shaping events that is the tendency to personify causation and a tendency to imagine that one or one's group is the focus of the malign or benign attention of purposeful entities from the local to the cosmic Schwartz and Smith discuss the prevalence of millenarianism and warn against romanticising it because the millenarian mind can subvert rationality and nourish rage and fear even as it seeks transcendence Like Fire consummates remarkable longitudinal ethnographic research on the Paliau Movement in Papua New Guinea pursued from the 1950s into the 1990s by Theodore Schwartz with Michael French Smith as his sometime assistant and updated by Smith in 2015 The theoretical arguments are highly provocative and the book is well written and fascinating
