

Virtual Yeast Fermentation Lab: Part 2

The Experiment

As a scientist, you are studying the rates of fermentation in yeasts using different substrates. In four test tubes you add a different substrate to live yeast cells, except for Tube 5 which contains water. Every 15 minutes, you measure the amount of glucose that is present in the tube and the amount of carbon dioxide (CO₂) that has been generated. After one hour, you analyze your results. Please answer the questions using the data in the table below.
