Transcendental Utopias Individual And Community At Brook Farm Fruitlands And Walden:

Transcendental Utopias Richard Francis, 1997 Francis suggests that at the heart of Transcendentalism was a belief that all phenomena are connected in a repetitive sequence The task was to explain how human society could be reordered to benefit from this seriality Some members of the movement believed in evolutionary progress whereas others hoped to be the agents of a sudden millennial transformation They differed as well in their views on whether the fundamental social unit was the individual the family the phalanstery or the community The story of the three communities was inevitably also the story of particular individuals and Francis highlights the lives and ideas of such leaders as George Ripley W H Channing Bronson Alcott Charles Lane and Theodore Parker

Urban Utopias Malcolm Miles, 2007-11-21 Utopia tends to generate a bad press regarded as impracticable perhaps nostalgic or contradictory when visions of a perfect world cannot accommodate the change that is necessary to a free and self organizing society But people from diverse backgrounds are currently building a new society within the old balancing literal and metaphorical utopianism and demonstrating plural possibilities for alternative futures and types of settlement Thousands of such places exist around the world including intentional communities eco villages permaculture plots religious and secular retreats co housing projects self build schemes projects for low impact housing and activist squats in urban and rural sites This experience suggests however that when planning and design are not integral to alternative social formations the modern dream to engineer a new society cannot be realized The book is structured in four parts In part one literary and theoretical utopias from the early modern period to the nineteenth century are reconsidered Part two investigates twentieth century urban utopianism and contemporary alternative settlements focusing on social and environmental issues activism and eco village living Part three looks to wider horizons in recent practices in the non affluent world and Part four reviews a range of cases from the author's visits to specific sites This is followed by a short conclusion in which a discussion of key issues is resumed This book brings together insights from literary theoretical and practical utopias drawing out the characteristics of groups and places that are part of a new society It links today's utopian experiments to historical and literary utopias and to theoretical problems in utopian thought

BOOK JACKET

Somewhat on the Community System Andrew Loman,2014-02-04 Hawthorne wrote much of his major fiction in the decade that the theories of Charles Marie Fran ois Fourier crossed the Atlantic and contributed to a wave of communitarian experimentation in the American North. Famously, Hawthorne briefly lived and worked at Brook Farm, a Transcendentalist commune that formally converted to Fourierism when he had left and was embroiled in litigation to recover money he had invested in the community. In his fiction, Hawthorne responded directly to Fourierism and its critique of capitalism. He used his experiences at Brook Farm as the inspiration for The Blithedale Romance and in The House of the Seven Gables cast one of the principal characters as a recovering Fourierist. In The Scarlet Letter he engaged with Fourierist debates on marriage and the regulation of desire. Somewhat on the Community System examines these interventions and argues that Hawthorne's fiction both seeks to contain Fourierism and responds to its allure. Moreover, in formulating alternative morally acceptable utopias, ones that are predicated on middle class marriage, Hawthorne's fiction appropriates key aspects of Fourierist theory.
