1990-00 Repair Manual Scott A. Freeman, 1900 The Problem with Software Adam Barr, 2018-10-23 An industry insider explains why there is so much bad software and why academia doesn't teach programmers what industry wants them to know Why is software so prone to bugs So vulnerable to viruses Why are software products so often delayed or even canceled Is software development really hard or are software developers just not that good at it In The Problem with Software Adam Barr examines the proliferation of bad software explains what causes it and offers some suggestions on how to improve the situation For one thing Barr points out academia doesn't teach programmers what they actually need to know to do their jobs how to work in a team to create code that works reliably and can be maintained by somebody other than the original authors As the size and complexity of commercial software have grown the gap between academic computer science and industry has widened It's an open secret that there is little engineering in software engineering which continues to rely not on codified scientific knowledge but on intuition and experience Barr who worked as a programmer for more than twenty years describes how the industry has evolved from the era of mainframes and Fortran to today's embrace of the cloud He explains bugs and why software has so many of them and why today's interconnected computers offer fertile ground for viruses and worms The difference between good and bad software can be a single line of code and Barr includes code to illustrate the consequences of seemingly inconsequential choices by programmers Looking to the future Barr writes that the best prospect for improving software engineering is the move to the cloud When software is a service and not a product companies will have more incentive to make it good rather than good enough to ship Topics in Cryptology - CT-RSA 2012 Orr Dunkelman, 2012-02-23 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the Cryptographers Track at the RSA Conference 2012 CT RSA 2012 held in San Francisco CA USA in February March 2012 The 26 revised full papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 113 submissions The papers are organized in topical sections on side channel attacks digital signatures public key encryption cryptographic protocols secure implementation methods symmetric key primitives and secure multiparty computation
