Poynor, 2003-01-01 The past twenty years have seen profound changes in the field of graphic communication. One by one old certainties about the techniques and purposes of graphic design have been questioned and collapsed. No More Rules is the first critical survey to offer a complete overview of the graphic revolution during the postmodern period. According to design critic Rick Poynor, changes in graphic work were already well underway by the early 1980s even before the computer became a ubiquitous tool. With the international embrace of new electronic technologies in the 1990s these developments began to accelerate. An explosion of creativity in graphic design took place as designers and typographers reassessed their roles jettisoned existing rules and forged experimental new approaches. Graphic work became more self expressive idiosyncratic and occasionally extreme. Poynor tells this story in detail breaking down a broad multifaceted and sometimes confusing field of graphic design activity into key developments and themes: the origins of postmodern design deconstructionist design and theory issues of appropriation the revolution in digital type questions of authorship and critiques of postmodern graphic design. Each theme is illustrated by spectacular and significant examples of work produced between 1980 and 2000 that have changed the way in which designers and their audiences think about graphic communication. This generously illustrated book is a vital reference for design professionals and educators as well as for students of graphic design image making advertising and the visual arts. BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc. During that time the U S has seen the most dramatic demographic and cultural shifts in its history what can be called the colorization of America. But the same nation that elected its first Black president on a wave of hope another four letter word is still plunged into endless culture wars. How do Americans see race now? How has that changed and not changed over the half century? After eras framed by words like multicultural and post racial do we see each other any more clearly? Who We Be
