Misty Copeland

Misty Copeland is one of the top dancers in the world and is well known for her powerful performances. And her success is made even more incredible by the fact that she didn't start training as a dancer until she was a teenager.

Born in Missouri, USA, on 10 September 1982, Misty has five brothers and sister. Life wasn't easy while she was growing up and the family moved around a lot. When she was 13, she started doing ballet classes and her dance teacher quickly realised that she could become a star. Misty started training hard and in 2000 she joined one of the top ballet companies in America, American Ballet Theatre (ABT). Despite having some serious injuries, seven years later she became one of their soloists and started performing main parts in ballets. She has been ABT's lead dancer since 2015, the first African American woman who has ever held the position.

Misty has also had a career outside of ballet. She appeared in music video for singing superstar Prince in 2009 and a year later went on tour with him, performing as a dancer in his shows. She has taken acting classes and played a main role in a musical on Broadway in New York. Misty has appeared on screen, too. In 2015, she made a documentary, A Ballerina's Tale, about the challenges she has faced. Three years later, she was the lead dance role in the film The Nutcracker and the Four Realms. She has also written various books, including two for children and a health and fitness guide, as well as a biography.

Misty is also determined to make dance more accessible for everyone. She was one of the two organisers of the Swans for Relief campaign to raise money for struggling dancers worldwide. Thirty-two female dancers from 14 different countries, including the US, Russia, Mexico and China, took part. They recorded short performances of themselves dancing at home, which were then posted online. The campaign has already raised over $307,000. She is also an ambassador for the charity MindLeaps which organises dance and vocational training for young people in countries such as Kenya, Mauritania and Uganda.
