Researching Religious Education: Classroom Processes and Outcomes Friedrich Schweitzer, Reinhold Boschki, 2017 The question of how research on structures and outcomes in Religious Education can be carried out successfully is of current interest in many countries Next to the more traditional historical analytical and more recently international comparative approaches empirical research in religious education has been able to establish itself as a major approach to this field Moreover the contemporary discussion about comparative evaluation in schools has raised a number of questions which also refer to Religious Education What competences can pupils acquire in this subject Does Religious Education really support the acquisition and development of the competences aspired Are there differences in this respect between different forms of Religious Education or between different approaches to teaching With contributions from eight European countries the volume brings together approaches and research experiences that try to follow this lead by offering new and empirically based perspectives for the future improvement of teaching and learning in this school subject Whoever is interested in improving the practice of Religious Education then will not be able to bypass the question of researching processes and outcomes an insight which also refers to a small but growing number of studies in this field which can be identified in several countries

Mathematics Education in the Early Years Martin Carlsen, Ingvald Erfjord, Per Sigurd Hundeland, 2020-03-13 This book gives insights in the vivid research area of early mathematics learning

The collection of selected chapters mirrors the research topics presented at the fourth POEM conference in May 2018. Thematically the volume reflects the importance of this evolving area of research which has begun to attract attention in the spheres of education and public policy due to increased interest in early years learning. The research foci of the chapters comprise children's mathematical reasoning, early years mathematics teaching and the role of parents for children's mathematical development. The 2018 conference included a wider range of researchers than previous years.

Linguistic Influences on Mathematical Cognition Ann Dowker, Hans-Christoph Nuerk, 2017-06-16

For many years an abstract amodal semantic magnitude representation largely independent of verbal linguistic representations has been viewed as the core numerical or mathematical representation. This assumption has been substantially challenged in recent years. Linguistic properties affect not only verbal representations of numbers but also numerical magnitude representation, spatial magnitude representations, calculation parity representation, place value representation and even early number acquisition. Thus we postulate that numerical and arithmetic processing are not fully independent of linguistic processing. This is not to say that in patients magnitude processing cannot function independently of linguistic processing; we just suppose these functions are connected in the functioning brain. So far much research about linguistic influences on numerical cognition has simply demonstrated that language influences number without investigating the level at which a particular language influence operates. After an overview we present new findings on language influences on seven language levels: Conceptual, Conceptual properties of language, Syntactic, The grammatical structure of languages beyond the word level, Influences, Semantic, The semantic meaning or existence of words, Lexical, The lexical composition of words in particular number words, Visuo spatial, orthographic, Orthographic properties such as the writing reading direction of a language, Phonological, Phonological phonetic properties of languages, Other language related skills, Verbal working memory and other cognitive skills related to language representations. We hope that this book provides a new and structured overview on the exciting influences of linguistic processing on numerical cognition at almost all levels of language processing.

School with a Big Why Peter T. Denton, 2024-12-09

These reflections on school and schooling come from the crucible of practice in the real world of K-12 education. Written by a school leader for his school, these essays have a timeless and universal appeal for parents, grandparents, educators, school leaders and all who care about the formation of the next generation. Chip Denton, founding head of Trinity School in Durham, North Carolina, applies multiple lenses—theological, pedagogical and practical—to reflect on the ways a school's mission drives a multitude of mindsets, traditions and habits in a community of learners. Schools are places where words matter and in this volume you can see a school leader working to match word and deed in the life of a school. Collected from Denton's regular Head Lines letters to the Trinity School.
