Nelsen,James L.

Guth,2015-03-31 Nelsen and Guth contend that religion or confessional culture plays a powerful role in shaping European ideas about politics attitudes toward European integration and national and continental identities in its leaders and citizens Catholicism has for centuries promoted the unity of Christendom while Protestantism has valued particularity and feared Catholic dominance These confessional cultures the authors argue have resulted in two very different visions of Europe that have deeply influenced the process of postwar integration Catholics have seen Europe as a single cultural entity that is best governed by a single polity Protestants have never felt part of continental culture and have valued national borders as protectors of liberties historically threatened by Catholic powers Catholics have pressed for a politically united Europe Protestants have resisted sacrificing sovereignty to federal institutions favoring pragmatic cooperation Despite growing secularization of the continent not to mention the impact of Islam confessional culture still exerts enormous influence And the authors conclude European elites must recognize the enduring significance of this Catholic Protestant cultural divide as the EU attempts to solve its social and economic and political crises Official Report of Debates Council of Europe:

Official Report of Debates Congress of Local and Regional Authorities of Europe,1996 The Transformation of John Foster Dulles Mark G. Toulouse,1985 Was the John Foster Dulles who personified the Cold War as U S secretary of state in the 1950s the same man who denounced narrow nationalism as a leader of worldwide ecumenism and liberal Protestantism in the 1930s In this remarkable study Mark Toulouse documents the transformation of Dulles from prophet of realism to priest of nationalism overturning misconceptions of those historians who have tended to read Dulles s early years backward from what they know of him as secretary of state Christian missions and international diplomacy shaped John Foster Dulles from childhood His father was a liberal Presbyterian minister one grandfather had been a missionary to India while the other had served as U S secretary of state under Benjamin Harrison and an uncle would serve Woodrow Wilson in the same office As a Princeton undergraduate Dulles accompanied his grandfather to an international peace conference at The Hague in 1907 where he became a secretary to the Chinese delegation That experience and a year at the Sorbonne pointed Dulles toward international law rather than the ministry But he remained an active ecumenically minded Presbyterian lay leader serving in several important denominational posts He successfully defended the the controversial Harry Emerson Fosdick and Henry P Van Dusen before the Presbyterian General Assembly when fundamentalists attempted to depose them In 1921 Dulles was appointed to the newly formed Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches Dulles emerged as an international leader in 1937 at the ecumenical Oxford conference on life and work Convinced in his discussions there of the need to translate his inherited spiritual values into practical international diplomacy Dulles organized and became chairman of the Federal Council s Commission to Study the Bases of a Just and Durable Peace Through the years of world war and as a participant in the United Nations Conference in 1945 Dulles sought a peace that would transcend the narrow concerns of nationalism and political ideology But after 1945 as Professor Toulouse shows the prophetic realism that had guided Dulles's ecumenical quest for world peace and justice became a priestly nationalism that uncompromisingly pursued the international political aims of the United States in the name of a supreme moral law Toulouse's incisive analysis of that transformation is compelling reading for scholars of international diplomacy and American religion and for every person who seeks to reconcile the imperatives of religion with the necessities of statecraft
