Robert N. Lussier

Why Are We Different Personality:

Character, Virtue Theories, and the Vices Christine McKinnon, 1999-08-26 This book argues that the question posed by virtue theories namely what kind of person should I be provides a more promising approach to moral questions than do either deontological or consequentialist moral theories where the concern is with what actions are morally required or permissible It does so both by arguing that there are firmer theoretical foundations for virtue theories and by persuasively suggesting the superiority of virtue theories over deontological and consequentialist theories on the question of explaining morally bad behavior Virtue theories can give a richer account by appealing to the kinds of dispositions that make certain bad choices appear attractive This richer account also exposes a further advantage of virtue theories they provide the best kinds of motivations for agents to become better persons

I Am You Daniel Kolak, 2007-11-03 Borders enclose and separate us We assign to them tremendous significance Along them we draw supposedly uncrossable boundaries within which we believe our individual identities begin and end erecting the metaphysical dividing walls that enclose each one of us into numerically identical numerically distinct entities persons Do the borders between us physical psychological neurological causal spatial temporal etc merit the metaphysical significance ordinarily accorded them The central thesis of I Am You is that our borders do not signify boundaries between persons We are all the same person Variations on this heretical theme have been voiced periodically throughout the ages the Upanishads Averro s Giordano Bruno Josiah Royce Schr dinger Fred Hoyle Freeman Dyson In presenting his arguments the author relies on detailed analyses of recent formal work on personal identity especially that of Derek Parfit Sydney Shoemaker Robert Nozick David Wiggins Daniel C Dennett and Thomas Nagel while incorporating the views of Descartes Leibniz Wittgenstein Schopenhauer Kant Husserl and Brouwer His development of the implied moral theory is inspired by and draws on Rawls Sidgwick Kant and again Parfit The traditional commonsense view that we are each a separate person numerically identical to ourselves over time i e that personal identity is closed under known individuating and identifying borders what the author calls Closed Individualism is shown to be incoherent The demonstration that personal identity is not closed but open points collectively in one of two new directions either there are no continuously existing self identical persons over time in the sense ordinarily understood the sort of view developed by philosophers as diverse as Buddha Hume and most recently Derek Parfit what the author calls Empty Individualism or else you are everyone i e personal identity is not closed under known individuating and identifying borders what the author calls Open Individualism In making his case the author offers a new explanation both of consciousness and of self consciousness constructs a new theory of Self explains psychopathologies e g multiple personality disorder schizophrenia shows Open Individualism to be the best competing explanation of who we are provides the metaphysical foundations for global ethics The book is intended for philosophers and the philosophically inclined physicists mathematicians psychiatrists psychologists linguists computer scientists economists and communication theorists It is accessible to graduate students and advanced undergraduates The Journal of Neurology and Psychopathology, 1927 Real World Psychology Catherine A. Sanderson, Karen R. Affective and Social Signals for HRI Hatice Gunes, Ginevra Castellano, Bilge Mutlu, 2020-02-04

Designing robots with socio emotional skills is a challenging research topic still in its infancy These skills are important for robots to be able to provide not only physical but also social support to human users and to engage in and sustain long term interactions with them in a variety of application domains that require human robot interaction including healthcare education entertainment manufacturing and many others The availability of commercial robotic platforms and developments in collaborative academic research provide us a positive outlook however the capabilities of current social robots are quite limited The main challenge is understanding the underlying mechanisms of the humans in responding to and interacting with real life situations and how to model these mechanisms for the embodiment of naturalistic human inspired behaviors via robots To address this challenge successfully requires an understanding of the essential components of social interaction including nonverbal behavioral cues such as interpersonal distance body position body posture arm and hand gestures head and facial gestures gaze silences vocal outbursts and their dynamics To create truly intelligent social robots these nonverbal cues need to be interpreted to form an understanding of the higher level phenomena including first impression formation social roles interpersonal relationships focus of attention synchrony affective states emotions and personality and in turn defining optimal protocols and behaviors to express these phenomena through robotic platforms in an appropriate and timely manner Achieving this goal requires the fields of psychology nonverbal behavior vision social signal processing affective computing and HRI to constantly interact with one another This Research Topic aims to foster such interactions and collaborations by bringing together the latest works and developments from across a range of research groups and disciplines working in these fields The Research Topic is a collection of 14 articles that span across five research themes Three articles co authored by Terada and Takeuchi Jung et al and Kennedy et al explore the design of social and affective cues for robots and investigate their effects on human robot interaction Mirnig et al Bremner et al and Strait et al investigate people s perceptions of robots in different settings and scenarios such as when robots make errors Articles by Lee et al Leite et al and Heath et al investigate the factors that shape dialogic interaction with robots such as interaction context The articles under the theme social and affective therapy by Rouaix et al Rudovic et al and Matsuda et al report on how individuals from clinical populations such as those with dementia autism and other pervasive developmental disorders PDDs interact with robots in therapeutic scenarios Finally Mikl si et al and Durantin et al offer new perspectives in human robot interaction with a focus on reframing social interaction and human robot relationships We are excited about sharing this rich collection with the scientific community and about its contributions to the human robot interaction literature
