The South of England is one of the most fertile regions in the world, and it is the only one in which the climate is so favourable to the growth of the various crops of the country. The soil is so rich and the climate so mild, that the crops are so abundant and so early, that the country is the granary of the nation.

It is often said that the company's name—Bios—has nothing to do with the technology. But it was just a coincidence, says a company spokesman. "It was just a coincidence that the name was chosen," he says. "It was just a coincidence that the name was chosen."
