criminal justice corrections philosophy of punishment the sociology of punishment and law and justice Confronting Penal Excess David Hayes, 2019-11-14 This monograph considers the correlation between the relative success of retributive penal policies in English speaking liberal democracies since the 1970s and the practical evidence of increasingly excessive reliance on the penal State in those jurisdictions It sets out three key arguments First that increasingly excessive conditions in England and Wales over the last three decades represent a failure of retributive theory Second that the penal minimalist cause cannot do without retributive proportionality at least in comparison to the limiting principles espoused by rehabilitation restorative justice and penal abolitionism Third that another retributivism is therefore necessary if we are to confront penal excess The monograph offers a sketch of this new approach late retributivism as both a theory of punishment and of minimalist political action within a democratic society Centrally criminal punishment is approached as both a political act and a policy choice Consequently penal theorists must take account of contemporary political contexts in designing and advocating for their theories Although this inquiry focuses primarily on England and Wales its models of retributivism and of academic contribution to democratic penal policy making are relevant to other jurisdictions too The End of Prisons. Mechthild E. Retributivism Has a Past Michael Tonry, 2011-12-12 A collection of essays by major figures in punishment theory law and philosophy that reconsiders the popularity and prospects of retributivism the notion that punishment is morally justified because people have behaved wrongly Treatment for Crime David Birks, Thomas Douglas, 2018-11-01 Preventing recidivism is one of the aims of criminal justice yet existing means of pursuing this aim are often poorly effective highly restrictive of basic freedoms and significantly harmful Incarceration for example tends to be disruptive of personal relationships and careers detrimental to physical and mental health restrictive of freedom of movement and rarely more than modestly effective at preventing recidivism Crime preventing neurointerventions CPNs are increasingly being advocated and there is a growing use of testosterone lowering agents to prevent recidivism in sexual offenders and strong political and scientific interest in developing pharmaceutical treatments for psychopathy and anti social behaviour Future neuroscientific advances could yield further CPNs we could ultimately have at our disposal a range of drugs capable of suppressing violent aggression and it is not difficult to imagine possible applications of such drugs in crime prevention Neurointerventions hold out the promise of preventing recidivism in ways that are both more effective and more humane But should neurointerventions be used in crime prevention And may the state ever permissibly impose CPNs as part of the criminal justice process either unconditionally or as a condition of parole or early release The use of CPNs raises several ethical concerns as they could be highly intrusive and may threaten fundamental human values such as bodily integrity and freedom of thought In the first book length treatment of this topic Treatment for Crime brings together original contributions from internationally renowned moral and political philosophers to address these questions and consider the possible issues recognizing how humanity has a track record of misguided harmful and unwarrantedly coercive use of neurotechnological solutions to criminality The Engaging Philosophy series is a new forum for collective philosophical engagement with controversial issues in contemporary society The SAGE Encyclopedia of Surveillance, Security, and Privacy Bruce A. Arrigo, 2016-06-15 In all levels of social structure from the personal to the political to the economic to the judicial The SAGE Encyclopedia of Surveillance Security and Privacy uncovers and explains how surveillance has come to be an integral part of how our contemporary society operates worldwide

Legal and Ethical Retributivism Halil Cesur, 2025-07-31 This book explores a foundational philosophical tension in contemporary retributivism revealing ambiguities in its approach to punishment between two conflicting conceptions of restoration legal justice and ethical love Through an analysis of the three parties involved in a crime the victim the offender and the state it argues that neo retributivism has not sufficiently incorporated the ethical face of punishment into its theoretical framework The pull of legal justice is often so strong that the voice of ethical love is silenced neo retributivism is at an impasse To navigate this the book engages with contemporary critical criminal justice scholarship introducing the ideal of loving justice while highlighting an unresolved tension between penal reformism and abolitionism The book will be of interest to academicians and researchers working in the areas of philosophy of punishment criminal law theory criminal justice restorative justice philosophy of law political philosophy and Hegel scholarship
