with HeartRadiance Australian Wild Flower Essences

By Annie Meredith

As teacher, author, acupuncturist and spiritual healer of 40 years standing, Annie Meredith's passion is awakening people to their highest potential through understanding the powerful biological underpinnings that drive & compel them on all levels - physical, emotional, mental & spiritual. Working with the perfected elements of Nature, Annie developed HeartRadiance Australian Wild Flower Essences in order to empower people to live their best lives and infuse all their relationships with radiant love.

We are not just our physical body, we are much more. As conscious beings our wholeness is supported by the interaction of all the bodies which together create health: physical, which we can touch, feel, see, hear and taste, and mental, emotional and spiritual (or attitudinal) all of which reside in the energetic subtle anatomy, the vehicle for the vital force. When each of these bodies is working harmoniously and in tandem, human consciousness is clear alive, awake and aware, decisions are made effortlessly and life flows smoothly.

Easily identifiable when we compare a live body to a dead one, it is the vital animating life force that moves, warms and grants the living body intelligent functioning as compared to the stillness and inability to respond to stimuli of a person who is dead.

The vital force for the individual is present from the moment of conception acting as a guiding template for the physical body to develop through gestation, infancy, childhood, through the developmentally fast-forward growth spurt that occurs in teenage-hood and into adulthood.

Housed in and around the body, the vital force is intelligently structured. Known as the subtle energy system, it is made up of seven embodied chakras, known as energy centres (or the seas) that lie along the front of the spine and 12-plus meridians (the rivers), which distribute life-giving energy from the chakras to every single cell in the tissues, fluids, organs, bones, brain and nervous system of the body. Additionally, in recent years, new chakras have opened up to accommodate the higher frequency energies that are entering the planet, bathing the planet in a higher level of consciousness.

The traditional bodily chakras, with their meridian counterparts are tiered, from the base of the trunk through to the crown of the head, along with meridian conduits that carry the resonance of the chakra for which they are distributing energy.

The various embodied chakras and meridians vibrate at different frequencies, with those at the base of the trunk resonating at the longest wave length and slowest vibrational rate, while those at the top of the body with the shortest wave length and fastest vibrational rate. The chakras and meridians in between, are graduated or stepped up in resonance incrementally, creating a continuum of vibrational resonance throughout the whole of the body from the lowest at the base of the trunk to the highest at the crown of the head.

The new chakras, mostly located above the head, vibrate at even higher and finer frequencies and are more concerned with higher aspects of awareness, assisting human beings to comprehend more fully our place in the Universe. They assist you to 'walk your talk' and to align your spiritual beliefs with the present moment, by letting go of old patterns of belief, finding your soul purpose, connecting with and acting for the earth as a sentient being, and healing yourself and others through tapping into the potency of the life force.

In an awesomely magnificent example of the intelligence of the vital force, each chakra, embodied, above the head and below the feet, governs not only a specific set of physical functions, but also emotional, attitudinal and developmental qualities that make up the whole human being. It is these aspects that help determine your
