Videopia Video Production For The Internet Revolution:

Videopia: Video Production for the Internet Revolution D. Eric Franks, 2009-03-03 Not since Gutenberg's invention of the printing press 400 years ago have we seen a revolution in communication technology this profound This revolution isn't just about the Internet It's not even about Internet video No the really radical shift is that we the people now have access to technology that lets us produce and more importantly distribute motion pictures that exceed the quality of television digital cable satellite and even Blu ray Well potentially exceeds anyhow This book will get you there From script writing and storyboards to shooting audio editing compositing effects rendering distribution the film look and copyright law this book is the only one that covers it all with stunningly concise explanations of complex topics Digital video veteran and seasoned author D Eric Franks invites you to join him at the companion Website videopia.org for continued discussions and advanced training videos

Video Revolutions Michael Z. Newman, 2014-04-01 Since the days of early television video has been an indispensable part of culture society and moving image media industries Over the decades it has been an avant garde artistic medium a high tech consumer gadget a format for watching movies at home a force for democracy and the ultimate ubiquitous means of documenting reality In the twenty first century video is the name we give all kinds of moving images We know it as an adaptable medium that bridges analog and digital amateur and professional broadcasting and recording television and cinema art and commercial culture and old media and new digital networks In this history Michael Z Newman casts video as a medium of shifting value and legitimacy in relation to other media and technologies particularly film and television Video has been imagined as more or less authentic or artistic than movies or television as more or less democratic and participatory as more or less capable of capturing the real Techno utopian rhetoric has repeatedly represented video as a revolutionary medium promising to solve the problems of the past and the present often the very problems associated with television and the society shaped by it and to deliver a better future Video has also been seen more negatively particularly as a threat to movies and their culture This study considers video as an object of these hopes and fears and builds an approach to thinking about the concept of the medium in terms of cultural status
