Variation And Reconstruction Current Issues In Linguistic Theory:

Grammatical Reconstruction Don Daniels, 2020-03-09 There is still widespread disagreement among historical linguists about how or whether syntactic reconstruction can be done This book presents a comprehensive methodology for syntactic reconstruction grounded in a constructional understanding of language The author then uses that methodology to reconstruct Proto Sogeram the ancestor to ten languages in Papua New Guinea Chapters are devoted to phonology lexicon verbal morphosyntax nominal morphosyntax and syntactic constructions The work culminates in a sketch of Proto Sogeram grammar Based largely on the author's original fieldwork this is an innovative application of a novel methodology to new data and the most complete reconstruction of a Papuan proto language to date It will be of interest to scholars of language change language reconstruction typology and Papuan languages

Competing Models of Linguistic Change Ole Nedergaard Thomsen, 2006 The articles of this volume are centered around two competing views on language change originally presented at the 2003 International Conference on Historical Linguistics in the two important plenary papers by Henning Andersen and William Croft The latter proposes an evolutionary model of language change within a domain neutral model of a generalized analysis of selection whereas Henning Andersen takes it that cultural phenomena could not possibly be handled i e observed described understood in the same way as natural phenomena These papers are models of succinct presentation of important theoretical framework The other papers present and discuss additional models of change e g invisible hand processes system internal models functional and cognitive models Most papers do not subscribe to the evolutionary model instead they focus on functional factors in the selection and propagation of variants as opposed to factors of code efficiency or on cognitive and pragmatic perspectives Several papers are inspired by the late Eugenio Coseriu and by Henning Andersen's theories on language change In particular the volume contains articles proposing interesting grammaticalization studies and extended models of grammaticalization The clear presentation of important and competing approaches to fundamental questions concerning language change will be of high interest for scholars and students working in the field of diachrony and typology The languages referred to in the papers include Cantonese the Chukotko Kamchatkan languages Danish English Eskimo languages German Norwegian Russian Spanish and Swedish

Lexical and Syntactical Constructions and the Construction of Meaning Marjolijn Verspoor, Kee Dong Lee, Eve Sweetser, 1997-06-26 The basic tenet of cognitive linguistics is that every linguistic expression is a construal relation The first section of this volume focuses on issues of such construal and presentation of information including figure ground relations image schematic structures and the role of syntactic constructions in information structure In sections two and three papers are presented on cross categorial polysemy between lexical and grammatical uses of a morpheme and between different grammatical senses and on the relationship between earlier lexical senses and later grammatical ones The final section of the volume brings together studies which shed further light on transitivity and argument structure The study of transitivity necessarily entails exploration of the relationship between syntactic constructions and the pragmatics and semantics conveyed by such constructions As a whole this collection of papers gives new evidence on the complexity and motivation of the mapping between linguistic form and function and offers a wealth of new directions for research on the construction of meaning at every level of the sentence

Variation and Reconstruction Thomas D. Cravens, 2006 The relation of language variation to reconstructed languages and to the methodology of reconstruction has long been neglected In this volume the relationship between language and variation is considered from a number of different angles looking at evidence from various language families In doing so the papers in this volume address a number of interconnected issues which are of current concern in comparative and historical linguistics

Romance Languages and Linguistic Theory 2006 Danièle Torck, Leo Wetzels, 2009 The annual conference series Going Romance has developed into a major European discussion forum where ideas about language and linguistics and about Romance languages in particular are put in an inter active perspective giving room to both universality and Romance internal variation The current volume contains a selection of the papers that were presented at the 20th Going Romance conference held at the VU University in Amsterdam in December 2006 The papers in the volume deal with current issues in phonology morphology syntax and semantics and range across a variety of Romance languages
