Tirpitz Michael Epkenhans, 2008 Alfred von Tirpitz 1849 1930 who joined the Prussian Navy in 1865 as a midshipman was chiefly responsible for rapidly developing and enlarging the German Navy especially the High Seas Fleet from 1897 until the years immediately prior to the First World War Epkenhans uses newly discovered documents to provide a fresh treatment of this important naval leader In 1897 Tirpitz became the Secretary of State of the Imperial Navy Department In four major building acts of 1898 1900 1908 and 1912 and in working closely with Kaiser Wilhelm II Tirpitz expanded the Imperial Navy from a small coastal force into a major blue water navy Great Britain reacting with alarm to this challenge to its overseas trade and naval supremacy accelerated the naval arms race by launching a revolutionary type of battleship the Dreadnought in 1906 and entering into strategic alliances with France and Russia By the start of the First World War in 1914 the British Royal Navy still held a sizable advantage in capital ships over Germany so that only one notable fleet action Jutland in 1916 took place during the war Tirpitz who had become the German Navy commander with the outbreak of the war thereafter became a staunch advocate of unrestricted submarine warfare This policy did not differentiate between neutral and belligerent shipping and proved so controversial with the neutral United States that Germany was forced to retract it albeit only temporarily In the meantime Tirpitz tendered his resignation to the Kaiser who surprisingly accepted it Tirpitz remained a minor figure thereafter later serving the right wing Fatherland Party as a deputy in the Reichstag

Militarism in a Global Age Dirk Bönker, 2012-03-15 At the turn of the twentieth century the United States and Germany emerged as the two most rapidly developing industrial nation states of the Atlantic world. The elites and intelligentsias of both countries staked out claims to dominance in the twentieth century. In Militarism in a Global Age, Dirk Bonker explores the far reaching ambitions of naval officers before World War I as they advanced navalism, a particular brand of modern militarism that stressed the paramount importance of sea power as a historical determinant. Aspiring to make their own countries into self-reliant world powers in an age of global empire, and commerce officers viewed the causes of the industrial nation's global influence, elite rule, and naval power as inseparable. Characterized by both transnational exchanges and national competition, the new maritime militarism was technocratic in its impulses; its makers cast themselves as members of a professional elite that served the nation with its expert knowledge of maritime and global affairs. American and German navalist projects differed less in their principal features than in their eventual trajectories. Over time, the pursuits of these projects channeled the two naval elites in different directions as they developed contrasting outlooks on their bids for world power and maritime force. Combining comparative history with transnational and global history, Militarism in a Global Age challenges traditional exceptionalist assumptions about militarism and national identity in Germany and the United States in its exploration of empire and geopolitics, warfare, and military operational imaginations, state formation, and national governance, and expertise and professionalism.

China Goes to Sea Andrew S. Erickson, Lyle J. Goldstein, Carnes Lord, 2009-07-01. In modern history, China has been primarily a land power dominating smaller states along its massive continental flanks. But China's turn toward the sea is now very much a reality, as evident in its stunning rise in global shipbuilding markets, its vast and expanding merchant marine, the wide offshore reach of its energy and minerals exploration companies, its growing fishing fleet, and indeed its increasingly modern navy. Yet for all these achievements, there is still profound skepticism regarding China's potential as a genuine maritime power. Beijing must still import the most vital subcomponents for its shipyards; maritime governance remains severely bureaucratically challenged, and the navy evinces at best a little enthusiasm for significant blue water power projection capabilities. This volume provides a truly comprehensive assessment of prospects for China's maritime development by situating these important geostrategic phenomena within a larger world historical context. China is hardly the only land power in history to attempt transformation by fostering sea power. Many continental powers have elected or been impelled to transform themselves into significant maritime powers in order to safeguard their strategic position or advance their interests. We examine cases of attempted transformation from the Persian Empire to the Soviet Union and determine the reasons for their success or failure. Too many works on China view the nation in isolation. Of course, China's history and culture are to some extent exceptional, but building intellectual fences actually hinders the effort to understand China's current development trajectory. Without underestimating the enduring pull of China's past as it relates to threats to the country's internal stability and its landward borders, this comparative study provides reason to believe that China has turned the corner on a genuine maritime transformation. If that proves indeed to be the case, it would be a remarkable if not singular event in the history of the last two millennia      Forthcoming Books Rose Arny, 2004

Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute United States Naval Institute, 1921      Naval History 1990 Paul Stillwell, 1991 Bound by year of publication these volumes each contain the year's issues of the Naval Institute's Naval History magazine Through gripping firsthand accounts exhaustively researched yet entertainingly written narratives and interviews with notable naval veterans and the world's foremost historians Naval History offers the best in historical literature and art from ancient Greek mariners through the Age of Sail to the World Wars Korea Vietnam and beyond all with a distinctly salty flavor      World War I Almanac David R. Woodward, 2009 Presents a day by day chronology of the events of World War I and a biographical dictionary of people involved in the conflict      Battleships of the World René Greger, 1997 Written by a leading naval authority this book provides comprehensive details on all battleships built since 1905 and the large pre dreadnoughts built that year
