Discussion

There is a growing body of evidence that the use of a single, standard, written protocol for the management of patients with a suspected or confirmed diagnosis of COVID-19 is not the best approach. The evidence suggests that a more tailored, individualized approach is needed, one that takes into account the patient's clinical presentation, the local epidemiology of the disease, and the resources available to the healthcare system. This is the case for the management of patients with a suspected or confirmed diagnosis of COVID-19 in the community, in the hospital, and in the long-term care facility. The evidence also suggests that a more tailored, individualized approach is needed for the management of patients with a suspected or confirmed diagnosis of COVID-19 in the community, in the hospital, and in the long-term care facility. Question (multiple-choice)

Which of the following is a true statement?

☐ A. The average of two numbers is always greater than or equal to the geometric mean of the two numbers.

☐ B. The average of two numbers is always less than or equal to the geometric mean of the two numbers.

☐ C. The average of two numbers is always equal to the geometric mean of the two numbers.

☐ D. The average of two numbers is always greater than the geometric mean of the two numbers.

☐ E. The average of two numbers is always less than the geometric mean of the two numbers.

Answer (multiple-choice)

Explanation (multiple-choice)

The average of two numbers is always greater than or equal to the geometric mean of the two numbers. This is a well-known inequality in mathematics, known as the Arithmetic Mean-Geometric Mean (AM-GM) inequality. It states that for any two non-negative real numbers, the arithmetic mean is greater than or equal to the geometric mean, with equality holding only when the two numbers are equal.

QUESTION A 60-year-old male with a 20-year history of type 2 diabetes mellitus presents with a 2-week history of increasing fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite. He reports frequent urination and increased thirst. His medical history is significant for hypertension, hyperlipidemia, and chronic kidney disease (stage 3). He is currently taking metformin, lisinopril, and atorvastatin. His last hemoglobin A1c was 8.5%. Physical examination reveals mild dehydration, dry mucous membranes, and a heart rate of 100 beats per minute. Laboratory studies show a serum glucose of 250 mg/dL, serum bicarbonate of 18 mEq/L, and a negative urine ketone test. Which of the following is the most likely cause of his symptoms?

ANSWERS

1. Hypertension
2. Hyperlipidemia
3. Chronic kidney disease
4. Type 2 diabetes mellitus
5. Metformin side effect

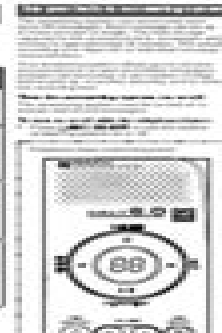

EXPLANATION

The patient's symptoms (fatigue, weight loss, decreased appetite, frequent urination, and increased thirst) are classic for hyperglycemia. The laboratory findings (serum glucose of 250 mg/dL, serum bicarbonate of 18 mEq/L, and a negative urine ketone test) further support this diagnosis. The patient's history of type 2 diabetes mellitus and his last hemoglobin A1c of 8.5% indicate poor glycemic control. The most likely cause of his symptoms is uncontrolled type 2 diabetes mellitus.

Abstract Background The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of self-reported mental health problems in a representative sample of the adult population of the Netherlands. Methods Data were obtained from the 1996 Dutch General Social Survey, a representative sample of the adult population of the Netherlands. The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was determined for the total sample and for men and women separately. Results The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was 12.5% for the total sample, 13.5% for men and 11.5% for women. The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was higher for men than for women in the age group 18–24 years, but lower for men than for women in the age group 65 years and older. The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was higher for men than for women in the age group 25–64 years. The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was higher for men than for women in the age group 65 years and older. The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was higher for men than for women in the age group 25–64 years. The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was higher for men than for women in the age group 65 years and older. Conclusions The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was 12.5% for the total sample, 13.5% for men and 11.5% for women. The prevalence of self-reported mental health problems was higher for men than for women in the age group 18–24 years, but lower for men than for women in the age group 65 years and older.
