Channel-conveyance capacity, channel change, and sediment transport in the lower Puyallup, White, and Carbon Rivers, western Washington Jonathan A. Czuba, Christiana R. Czuba, Christopher S. Magirl, Frank D. Voss, 2010-12-01 Draining the volcanic glaciated terrain of Mount Rainier Washington the Puyallup White and Carbon Rivers convey copious volumes of water and sediment down to Commencement Bay in Puget Sound Recent flooding in the lowland river system has renewed interest in understanding sediment transport and its effects on flow conveyance throughout the lower drainage basin Bathymetric and topographic data for 156 cross sections were surveyed in the lower Puyallup River system by the U S Geological Survey USGS and were compared with similar datasets collected in 1984 Regions of significant aggradation were measured along the Puyallup and White Rivers Between 1984 and 2009 aggradation totals as measured by changes in average channel elevation were as much as 7 5 6 5 and 2 feet on the Puyallup White and Carbon Rivers respectively These aggrading river sections correlated with decreasing slopes in riverbeds where the rivers exit relatively confined sections in the upper drainage and enter the relatively unconstricted valleys of the low gradient Puget Lowland Measured grain size distributions from each riverbed showed a progressive fining downstream Analysis of stage discharge relations at streamflow gaging stations along rivers draining Mount Rainier demonstrated the dynamic nature of channel morphology on river courses influenced by glaciated volcanic terrain The greatest rates of aggradation since the 1980s were in the Nisqually River near National 5 0 inches per year and the White River near Auburn 1 8 inches per year Less pronounced aggradation was measured on the Puyallup River and the White River just downstream of Mud Mountain Dam The largest measured rate of incision was measured in the Cowlitz River at Packwood 5 0 inches per year Channel conveyance capacity estimated using a one dimensional hydraulic model decreased in some river reaches since 1984 The reach exhibiting the largest decrease about 20 50 percent in channel conveyance capacity was the White River between R Street Bridge and the Lake Tapps return a reach affected by recent flooding Conveyance capacity also decreased in sections of the Puyallup River Conveyance capacity was mostly unchanged along other study reaches Bedload transport was simulated throughout the entire river network and consistent with other observations and analyses the hydraulic model showed that the upper Puyallup and White Rivers tended to accumulate sediment Accuracy of the bedload transport modeling however was limited due to a scarcity of sediment transport data sets from the Puyallup system mantling of sand over cobbles in the lower Puyallup and White Rivers and overall uncertainty in modeling sediment transport in gravel bedded rivers Consequently the output results from the model were treated as more qualitative in value useful in comparing geomorphic trends within different river reaches but not accurate in producing precise predictions of mass of sediment moved or deposited The hydraulic model and the bedload transport component were useful for analyzing proposed river management options if surveyed cross sections adequately represented the river management site and proposed management options The hydraulic model showed that setback levees would provide greater flood protection than gravel bar scalping after the initial project construction and for some time thereafter although the model was not accurate enough to quantify the length of time of the flood protection The greatest hydraulic benefit from setback levees would be a substantial increase in the effective channel conveyance area By widening the distance between levees the new floodplain would accommodate larger increases in discharge with relatively small incremental increases in stage Model simulation results indicate that the hydraulic benefit from a setback levee also would be long lived and would effectively compensate for increased deposition within the setback reach from increased channel conveyance capacity In contrast the benefit from gravel bar scalping would be limited by the volume of material that could be removed and the underlying hydraulics in the river section that would be mostly unaffected by scalping Finally the study formulated an explanation of the flooding that affected Pacific Washington in January 2009 Reduction in channel conveyance capacity of about 25 percent at the White River near Auburn streamflow gaging station between November 2008 and January 2009 was caused by rapid accumulation of coarse grained sediment just downstream of the gage continuing an ongoing trend of aggradation that has been documented repeatedly Manual of Geospatial Science and Technology John D. Bossler, James B. Campbell, Robert B. McMaster, Chris Rizos, 2010-03-05 Following in the tradition of its popular predecessor the Manual of Geospatial Science and Technology Second Edition continues to be the authoritative volume that covers all aspects of the field both basic and applied and includes a focus on initiating planning and managing GIS projects This comprehensive resource which contains contributions Public Works Manual, 1991 Surveying: Theory and Practice James M Anderson, Edward M Mikhail, 1998 Drawing accurate topographical plans is a major part of field archaeology and standards need to be right up to the level of civil engineers This is the standard text for all professionals updated to incorporate the latest advances in legislation and technology especially the growth of Global Positioning System GPS precision Surveying for Engineers John Uren, Bill Price, 2018-03-13 The fifth edition of this classic textbook sets out the essential techniques needed for a solid grounding in the surveying The popular and trusted textbook covers the traditional topics such as levelling measurement of angles measuring distances and how to carry out traversing and compute coordinates as well as the latest technological advances It is packed with clear illustrations exercises and worked examples making it both a comprehensive study aid for students and a reliable reference tool for practitioners This text is aimed at students studying surveying as either part of a civil engineering building or construction course or as a separate discipline It is also useful for students who undertake surveying as an elective subject and is a useful resource for practising surveyors New to this Edition The latest developments in Global Navigation Satellite Systems GNSS particularly the introduction of network RTK and OS Net and their applications Recent developments in survey instruments methods and digital technologies including image processing with total stations and laser scanners developments in data processing and integration and updates on Ordnance Survey mapping products Canadian Journal of Forest Research, 2011 ACSM Bulletin, 1998

Construction Technology for Builders Glenn Costin,2020-06-26 Construction Technology for Builders 1e addresses requirements of the Certificate IV in Building and Construction Building The text addresses 14 competency units with learning activities and work sheets for downloading The chapters are aligned to specific competency units and the material in this text requires and emphasises that the reader engage with Standards and Codes such as the NCC Communication is a critical component of the building and construction process and the preparation of sketches and drawings is a vital part of that communication skill set the text has a dedicated chapter on preparing building sketches and drawings There are two chapters on structures the first introducing the concepts underlying structural principles and underpins the following chapter that applies this knowledge to the various elements of a building Additional learning material such as plans and specifications is provided in the Appendices to assist with the understanding of examples and exercises in the text

Digital Earth Moving Caroline Y. Westort,2003-06-30 Digital manipulation of landform is revolutionizing how our built environment is designed and constructed On a technical level three dimensional geometric modeling of topography has its origins at the interface of geographic information systems GIS and computer aided geometric modeling CAD the former with its representations of spatial attribute information with digital terrain in several representations Triangulated Irregular Networks contour lines etc the latter focusing primarily on the parameterization and combination of geometric primitives The broadening of these two disciplines to embrace new surveying and navigation advances e g global positioning systems GPS together with developments in engineering on the application side are leading to powerful new suites of functionality There has been a pronounced need for a forum where these traditionally separate parties can interact These proceedings contain the technical papers selected and formally presented as part of the scientific program of the First International Symposium on Digital Earth Moving 2001 DEM 2001 held September 5 7 2001 at the CIM Institute for Computing Science and Industrial Technologies of the University of Applied Science of Southern Switzerland SUPSI iCIMS in Manno Lugano Switzerland It is the first volume published on this explicit theme Thirty six submissions were received from fifteen countries with thirteen select papers and posters presented in the official program and in this publication The Canadian Surveyor ,1985 The American City & County ,1988 Bio-robotics, Information Technology, and Intelligent Control for Bioproduction Systems 2000 Sakae Shibusawa,Mitsuji Monta,Haruhiko Murase,2001 This Proceedings contains papers presented at the 2nd IFAC CIGR International Workshop on Bio Robotics Information Technology and Intelligent Control for Bioproduction Systems which was held at Sakai Osaka Japan from November 25 26 2000 The purpose of the BIO ROBOTICS II workshop was to provide a forum for the presentation of new approaches and results in the study of bioproduction robots including automated and autonomous machine systems with or without manipulators information oriented technology to deal with variability and intelligence technology for bioproduction systems The discussions at the workshop focussed on the development of new automated bioproduction systems and the commercialization of various robots To realize automated bioproduction systems such as cultivating a field many kinds of sensing system are obviously required to describe or recognize complex objects and similar applications are needed in many areas of bio robotics research Precision farming and greenhouse technology are new integrated applications that use a systems approach to manage the spatial and temporal variability that is inherent in bioproduction systems The presentation discussion and exchange of knowledge experience and inspiration among the participants during the workshop should aid solutions on global issues such as food shortage global warming pollution and ecosystem instability These proceedings will also contribute to improving the quality of research and to widen the application fields of bio robotics information technology and intelligent control for Bioproduction Systems
