Translation & Language Teaching Kirsten Malmkjær, 1998 For at least a century attitudes to the use of translation in language teaching have been predominantly negative the deprecators of the methodology having been particularly vocal at the turn of the 20th century and again in the 1960s and 70s Yet for all of this time translation has remained a significant component in the teaching of many languages in many parts of the world and the 1980s saw a revival of support for the practice among a number of applied linguists Language teaching for translators has been rather less contentious It has always been assumed that translators must know their languages thoroughly but little has been written about how they as a special group might be taught their languages In the final quarter of the 20th century attention among translation scholars and pedagogues has turned so decisively away from linguistics that even teaching translators about their languages and how they can be put to use has been frowned on in many quarters This book takes a fresh look at both issues Part One addresses the question of the place and nature of language teaching in translator training programmes Part Two deals with the issue of how translation might best be used as a teaching and testing methodology in language classes Finally the papers in Part Three address the relationship between translation and language teaching from the somewhat divergent points of view of the translator trainer and language teacher

Translation in Language Teaching and Assessment Georgios Floros, Dina Tsagari, 2013-09-11 The aim of this volume is to record the resurgent influence of Language Learning in Translation Studies and the various contemporary ways in which translation is used in the fields of Language Teaching and Assessment It examines the possibilities and limitations of the interplay between the two disciplines in attempting to investigate the degree to which recent calls for reinstating translation in language learning have borne fruit The volume accommodates high quality original submissions that address a variety of issues from a theoretical as well as an empirical point of view The chapters of the volume raise important questions and demonstrate the beginning of a new era of conscious epistemological traffic between the two aforementioned disciplines The contributors to the volume are academics researchers and professionals in the fields of Translation Studies and Language Teaching and Assessment from various countries and educational contexts including the USA Canada Taiwan R O C and European countries such as Belgium Germany Greece Slovenia and Sweden and various professional and instructional settings such as school sector and graduate undergraduate and certificate programs The contributions approach the interplay between the two disciplines from various angles including functional approaches to translation contemporary types of translation and the discursive interaction between teachers and students

Linguistics, Language Education, and Language Contact Barbara Lewandowska-Tomaszczyk, Translation and Language Teaching Nicolas Frøeliger, Melita Koletnik, 2019-06-04 Drawing upon convergences between translation studies and foreign and second language L2 didactics that have emerged as a result of recent research this volume continues the dialogue between the two disciplines by allowing for epistemological two way traffic marrying established yet so far unrelated or under researched conceptual approaches and disseminating innovative scientific evidence from different continents A unique feature of the volume is the sub section presenting the most recent empirical studies in the development of linguistic and other professional competences for translators with suggestions for re defining translation curricula The contributors to this volume include representatives of various spheres including academics researchers and practitioners Their underlying theoretical and empirical research is informed by multiple perspectives linguistics didactics and translation related This book shows how integrating insights from translation studies into language teaching and vice versa can effectively respond to the challenges of contemporary language and translator teaching and training
