Private Pilot Judgment Training in Flight School Settings Alan E. Diehl, 1987 Pilot judgment errors have long been recognized as an important factor in aviation accidents Previous studies have demonstrated that specialized training procedures can significantly reduce the number of decisional errors made by newly certified private pilots during in flight tests However the subjects in these studies were all college age students enrolled in full time aviation training programs which were taught by highly motivated instructors The present study examined the utility of revised judgment training materials with typical private pilot applicants in conventional flight school settings at ten fixed based operations within the FAA s eastern region The performance of a sample of subjects who received judgment training was compared with that of a control group drawn from these same FBOs The behavioral test of judgment was in the form of an observation flight administered by observers who were uninformed of the details of the experimental design Students and instructors also completed a critique of the program materials The results of the study suggest that improvements in pilot decision making skills can be achieved in the less formal instructional climate which characterizes many conventional flight school programs The revised judgment training program and instructional materials are acceptable to the user community and most participants found them to be very useful

Aeroplane Flight Training Manual Canada. Transport Canada, 2004 Civil Aeronautics Journal, 1941 Aeronautical Decision-Making and Aviation Safety in the Alaskan Operational Setting Dana Atkins, Daniel Kwasi Adjekum, 2024-09-19 Aeronautical Decision Making and Aviation Safety in the Alaskan Operational Setting introduces the reader to the real life experiences of aviators who fly in remote settings such as Alaska in the United States. It covers the challenges related to limited aviation infrastructure and support that affect human factors like aeronautical decision making and its impact on aviation safety. Through a unique blend of meticulous case study analysis and semi structured interviews with Alaskan pilots, this book offers a comprehensive understanding of the proverbial challenges of flying in Alaska. It uncovers the human factors elements specific to this environment, shedding light on the factors that influence a pilot's decision making, which may contribute to the high rate of accidents in Alaska and other remote regions. The content is supported by historical and socioeconomic perspectives on remote setting aviation operations. Global perspectives are discussed with narratives from one author's experiences flying to remote airstrips in Africa. The book concludes with practical recommendations to improve decision making and aviation safety in these remote settings, making it a must read for aviation professionals. This insightful research is not just for academic consumption; it is a practical guide for aviation professionals including pilots, dispatch teams, air traffic controllers, and aviation support personnel. It offers valuable insights into the human factors involved in flying in Alaska, which can be directly applied in other aviation resource constrained geographical regions, making it an indispensable resource for those in the field.
