Transhumanism And Transcendence Christian Hope In An Age Of Technological Enhancement:

Transhumanism and Transcendence Ronald Cole-Turner, 2011-09-29 The timeless human desire to be more beautiful intelligent healthy athletic or young has given rise in our time to technologies of human enhancement Athletes use drugs to increase their strength or stamina cosmetic surgery is widely used to improve physical appearance millions of men take drugs like Viagra to enhance sexual performance And today researchers are exploring technologies such as cell regeneration and implantable devices that interact directly with the brain Some condemn these developments as a new kind of cheating not just in sports but in life itself promising rewards without effort and depriving us most of all of what it means to be authentic human beings Transhumanists on the other hand reject what they see as a rationalizing of human limits as if being human means being content forever with underachieving bodies and brains To be human they insist is to be restless with possibilities always eager to transcend biological limits As the debate grows in urgency how should theology respond Christian theologians recognize truth on both sides of the argument pointing out how the yearnings of the transhumanists if not their technological methods find deep affinities in Christian belief In this volume Ronald Cole Turner has joined seasoned scholars and younger emerging voices together to bring fresh insight into the technologies that are already reshaping the future of Christian life and hope

Theologically Engaged Anthropology J. Derrick Lemons, 2018-08-16 After years of discussion within the field of anthropology concerning how to properly engage with theology a growing number of anthropologists now want to engage with theology as a counterpart in ethnographic dialogue Theologically Engaged Anthropology focuses on the theological history of anthropology illuminating deeply held theological assumptions that humans make about the nature of reality and illustrating how these theological assumptions manifest themselves in society This volume brings together leading anthropologists and theologians to consider what theology can contribute to cultural anthropology and ethnography It provides anthropologists and theologians with a rationale and framework for using theology in anthropological research

Religion and Transhumanism Calvin Mercer, Tracy J. Trothen, 2014-11-17 Should technology be used to improve human faculties such as cognition and longevity This thought provoking dialogue between transhumanism and religion examines enhancement technologies that could radically alter the human species Transhumanism or human enhancement is an intellectual and cultural movement that advocates the use of emerging technologies to change human traits Although they may sound like science fiction the possibilities suggested by transhumanism are very real and the questions they raise have no easy answers If these enhancements especially major ones like the indefinite extension of healthy human life become widely available they would arguably have a more radical impact on humankind than any other development in history This book comprises essays that explore transhumanism and the issues that surround it addressing numerous fascinating questions posed by scholars of religion from various traditions How will immortality or extreme longevity change our religious beliefs and practices How might pharmaceuticals enhance spiritual experiences Will post human technologies be available to all persons or will a superior post human race arise to dominate the human species The discussions are as intriguing as the future they suggest

Human Flourishing in an Age of Gene Editing Erik Parens, Josephine Johnston, 2019-07-29 International uproar followed the recent announcement of the birth of twin girls whose genomes had been edited with a breakthrough DNA editing technology This technology called clustered regularly interspaced short palindrome repeats or CRISPR Cas9 can alter any DNA including DNA in embryos meaning that changes can be passed to the offspring of the person that embryo becomes Should we use gene editing technologies to change ourselves our children and future generations to come The potential uses of CRISPR Cas9 and other gene editing technologies are unprecedented in human history By using these technologies we eradicate certain dreadful diseases Altering human DNA however raises enormously difficult questions Some of these questions are about safety Can these technologies be deployed without posing an unreasonable risk of physical harm to current and future generations Can all physical risks be adequately assessed and responsibly managed But gene editing technologies also raise other moral questions which touch on deeply held personal cultural and societal values Might such technologies redefine what it means to be healthy or normal or cherished Might they undermine relationships between parents and children or exacerbate the gap between the haves and have nots The broadest form of this second kind of question is the focus of this book What might gene editing and related technologies mean for human flourishing In the new essays collected here an interdisciplinary group of scholars asks age old questions about the nature and well being of humans in the context of a revolutionary new biotechnology one that has the potential to change the genetic make up of both existing people and future generations Welcoming readers who study related issues and those not yet familiar with the formal study of bioethics the authors of these essays open up a conversation about the ethics of gene editing It is through this conversation that citizens can influence laws and the distribution of funding for science and medicine that professional leaders can shape understanding and use of gene editing and related technologies by scientists patients and practitioners and that individuals can make decisions about their own lives and the lives of their families

Deconstructing Transhumanism Michael G. Sherbert, 2025-09-30 Deconstructing Transhumanism A Religion Without Religion challenges the widely held view that transhumanism a movement advocating for the enhancement of human life through technology is purely secular and scientific Instead this groundbreaking study reveals how transhumanist thought remains deeply shaped by religious ideas particularly those rooted in Christianity Drawing on the philosophy of Jacques Derrida Michael G Sherbert explores how religious concepts like the sacred messianism salvation and transcendence quietly persist within transhumanist visions of the future often without reflection on the potential dangers they carry From artificial intelligence to the dream of digital immortality this book uncovers how technological aspirations often mirror age old religious hopes Through a careful analysis of leading figures such as Ray Kurzweil David Pearce and Nick Bostrom Sherbert shows that even the most futuristic goals often retain hidden religious structures what Derrida calls a religion without religion Spanning philosophical inquiry ethical reflection and cultural critique Deconstructing Transhumanism invites readers to rethink the assumptions behind some of today's most influential ideas about technology progress and the future It offers a timely examination of the religious undercurrents shaping Western technological imaginaries urging greater awareness of the powerful and sometimes perilous narratives we carry into our increasingly high tech future Eschatology and the Technological Future Michael S. Burdett, 2014-12-05 The rapid advancement of technology has led to an explosion of speculative theories about what the future of humankind may look like These technological futurisms have arisen from significant advances in the fields of nanotechnology biotechnology and information technology and are drawing growing scrutiny from the philosophical and theological communities This text seeks to contextualize the growing literature on the cultural philosophical and religious implications of technological growth by considering technological futurisms such as transhumanism in the context of the long historical tradition of technological dreaming Michael Burdett traces the latent religious sources of our contemporary technological imagination by looking at visionary approaches to technology and the future in seminal technological utopias and science fiction and draws on past theological responses to the technological future with Pierre Teilhard de Chardin and Jacques Ellul Burdett's argument arrives at a contemporary Christian response to transhumanism based around the themes of possibility and promise by turning to the works of Richard Kearney Eberhard Jüngel and Jürgen Moltmann Throughout the author highlights points of correspondence and divergence between technological futurisms and the Judeo-Christian understanding of the future

Social Catholicism for the Twenty-first Century?--Volume 2 William F. Murphy,2024-09-19 This rich collection of essays by distinguished scholars from across the globe can be read as sketching key steps on the path toward working in solidarity to build a future worthy of the human family through a new social Catholicism These steps include a contemporary renewal of Christian humanism and of human rights while learning to live as authentic Christian witnesses in pluralistic societies after the end of Christendom They will also include working for a just and sustainable economic paradigm becoming missionary disciples with a continual orientation toward the marginalized and overcoming the plague of racism by working to build a constitutional democracy for every citizen This societal renewal will require fostering robust movements of social Catholicism apt for our age within which Catholics will pursue the Universal Call to Holiness through living their earthly vocations in a spirit of social friendship They will creatively employ social media to foster apostolates extending beyond borders In an age of dark clouds threatening dystopia a new social Catholicism will require a reinvigorated pastoral leadership that has come to appreciate the dangers of populism and the need to instead foster solidarity and incarnate Christian charity through a better kind of politics
