Translating Ones Self European Connections Volume 3:

Minding the Gap Thom Conroy, Gail Pittaway, 2015-10-13 Passengers on the British railway and underground must mind the gap because it is dangerous not to. In a state of embarking or disembarking passengers must stay aware of the small but significant space separating the stationary from the moving. The contemporary practices of writing and reading are in constant motion and the phrase mind the gap captures an essential aspect of the way language and literature progress as they pass through any number of social, technical and political exchanges. Minding the gap also suggests an awareness of the always shifting distance between the expected and the unexpected, the ordinary and the impossible, the familiar and the unimagined. This book includes chapters on writing non-fiction, media and genre and also addresses elements of identity, culture and linguistics in fiction, poetry and creative non-fiction as contributors consider the gaps that exist between the self as writer, as reader and as editor or mentor. The volume adopts the following key themes: new gaps for creative writing in the academy; writing in new genres, media and forms; exploring the creative process and narrative strategies across disciplines. This book will be of international appeal to all readers interested in the changing landscape of creative writing. EbscoHost Identity and Difference Maria Sidiropoulou, 2005. Papers presented at the Choice and difference in translation international conference organized by the Faculty of English Studies, University of Athens, December 3-6, 2003. Preface and acknowledgements. European Intertexts Patsy Stoneman, Ana María Sánchez-Arce, Angela Leighton, 2005. European Intertexts is the first fruit of an ongoing collaborative study aiming to challenge the isolationism of much critical work on English literature by exploring the interdependence of English and continental European literatures in writing by women. While later volumes will deal with specific texts, this introductory volume provides a descriptive framework and a theoretical basis for studies in the field. Covering issues such as the role of English as a world language, the definition of Europe and the current state of Translation Studies, the book also surveys theories of intertextuality and demonstrates intertextual links between written and visual and film texts. This book is itself pioneering in making a systematic approach to women's writings in English in the context of other European cultures. Although Europe is a political reality, this cultural interpenetration remains largely unexamined and these essays represent an important first step towards revealing that unexplored richness.

The Faces of Janus Nicole Brunnhuber, 2005. The author offers an interdisciplinary examination of the German speaking exile experience in Great Britain from the beginnings of the Nazi regime to the end of the Second World War. The book examines the contingencies of cultural production for German and Austrian exiles against the historical context of British immigration and internment policies. By investigating the influence and manipulation of trends in popular British culture in the English language exile fiction by Ernest Borneman, Robert Neumann, Ruth Feiner, Lilo Linke and George Tabori, the author illustrates how a suspect minority voiced their socio-political concerns in the dominant culture and presents a strong case for the facilities of polylingualism in literature. The book reconstructs biographical and cultural histories of authors whose remarkable success as English language writers may otherwise risk lingering in obscurity Since the author traces the interaction of historical events and the personal experience of a range of writers themes of gender based national and religious identities are addressed Flexible and accessible the book extracts meaning from the politics of popular culture and cultural exchange in the twentieth century during a period of nationalism acute jingoism and war Border Crossings
