Waiting for the East Wind Elise Van Loon, This dissertation explains stick charts from the Marshall Islands and how each one is unique to the navigator who created it Stick charts are navigational tools that map the ocean's geography by illustrating how the atolls interrupt the ocean swells without giving any significant detail to the landmasses themselves Examining these instruments may lead to an understanding of how the Marshallese people perceive maritime space The stick charts are frequently compared to cartesian maps and the physical geography of the area However as time is a large factor in sailing I examined the varied elements of several stick charts as a matter of time rather than space The geographic distance between two atolls is constant but the placement of the atolls on each chart fluctuates. The possibility for the different placements is due to the influences of the sea causing an outward journey to take more or less time than the return. Through investigating the charts and linking elements of seafaring, the artefacts may convey abstract illustrations or literal representations of their environment. This dissertation aims to not only analyse the Marshallese stick charts but to collate components of their culture and heritage in order to explain the environment these charts were used in. This supports the idea that maritime space can be derived from how these charts were created. Based on each person's view of the sea, the information they deliver will be built on perception of time, distance and obstacles. Pacific Magazine, 2001

Linking Lifetimes Matt Kaplan, Nancy Zimmerman Henkin, Atsuko T. Kusano, 2002. In many developing and post industrialized nations there are powerful demographic and social changes that are endangering the natural ways that old and young have traditionally interacted. The current growth in the young and elderly segments of the population of most countries is leading to new challenges in terms of providing health care, education, financial support and social support systems for the young as well as the elderly. An important set of strategies for addressing these trends and the quality of life concerns they generate is the facilitation of intergenerational programs. The National Council on the Aging has defined intergenerational programming as activities or programs that increase cooperation, interaction or exchange between any two generations. In Linking Lifetimes the contributors explore the range of intergenerational programs and policies found across the globe and examine their role in ensuring the transmission of cultural values from generation to generation. By illustrating the rich diversity of intergenerational program models, the contributors discover how the common goal of promoting intergenerational interaction and understanding unfolds into differential trends, social issues and human service systems. Statistical Yearbook, 2004

Vaka Moana, Voyages of the Ancestors K. R. Howe, 2007-08-08. The most comprehensive and complete account yet of those ancient seafarers who developed the world's first ocean-going vessels and the advanced navigational systems to guide them and discovered the last habitable lands on earth, the islands of the mighty Pacific Ocean. P 4 of cover. Pacific Region Environmental Strategy, 2005-2009: Case studies, mainstreaming the environment in development planning and management Asian Development Bank, 2004. The Pacific Region Environmental Strategy (PRES) is the result of a regional technical assistance funded by ADB and the Government of New Zealand. The study covers a review of key environmental issues and main response strategies in the Pacific, an assessment of past environment-related assistance provided by ADB and other development partners in the region to draw relevant lessons and an identification of priority areas for intervention to map out future directions for ADB's environmental assistance to the region. The main PRES volume contains findings and ADB's environmental assistance strategy for the Pacific. The second PRES volume documents case studies carried out to provide important field-level context under the theme mainstreaming environment in development planning and management. The PRES is part of a broader strategic planning exercise covering ADB's overall assistance to the region for the period 2005-2009. Publisher website
