environment and social justice links we're still struggling to strengthen today Working in a tradition that stretches from Thoreau to Rebecca Solnit Miller offers nothing less than a new way of seeing the American past and of understanding what it can offer us for the present and the future

The father of our country slept with Martha but schlepped in the District Now in the great man's footsteps comes humorist and twenty year Washington resident Christopher Buckley with the real story of the city's founding Well not really We're just trying to get you to buy the book But we can say with justification that there's never been a more enjoyable funny and informative tour guide to the city than Buckley His delight as he points out things of interest is contagious and his frequent digressions about his own adventures as a White House staffer are often hilarious In Washington Schlepped Here Buckley takes us along for several walks around the town and shares with us a bit of his other Washington They include Dante's Paradiso Union Station the

Zero Milestone of American democracy the U S Capitol the Almost Pink House the White House and many other historical and often hysterical journeys Buckley is the sort of wonderful guide who pries loose the abalone like clichés that cling to a place as mythic as D C Wonderfully insightful and eminently practical Washington Schlepped Here shows us that even a city whose chief industry is government bureaucracy is a lot funnier and more surprising than its media ready image might let on From the Hardcover edition

A Road Running Southward Dan Chapman, 2022-05-26 Engaging hybrid part lyrical travelogue part investigative journalism and part jeremiad all shot through with droll humor The Atlanta Journal Constitution In 1867 John Muir set out on foot to explore the botanical wonders of the South keeping a detailed journal of his adventures as he traipsed from Kentucky southward to Florida One hundred and fifty years later on a similar whim veteran Atlanta reporter Dan Chapman distressed by sprawl driven environmental ills in a region he loves recreated Muir s journey to see for himself how nature has fared since Muir's time Channeling Muir he uses humor keen observation and a deep love of place to celebrate the South's natural riches But he laments that a treasured way of life for generations of Southerners is endangered as long simmering struggles intensify over misused and dwindling resources Chapman seeks to discover how Southerners might balance surging population growth with protecting the natural beauty Muir found so special Each chapter touches upon a local ecological problem at risk species in Mammoth Cave coal ash in Kingston Tennessee climate change in the Nantahala National Forest water wars in Georgia aquifer depletion in Florida that resonates across the South Chapman delves into the region's natural history moving between John Muir's vivid descriptions of a lush botanical paradise and the myriad environmental problems facing the South today Along the way he talks to locals with deep ties to the land scientists hunters politicians and even a Muir impersonator who describe the changes they've witnessed and what it will take to accommodate a fast growing population without destroying the natural beauty and a cherished connection to nature A Road Running Southward is part travelogue part environmental cri de coeur and paints a picture of a South under siege It is a passionate appeal a call to action to save one of the loveliest and most biodiverse regions of the world by understanding what we have to lose if we do nothing

Unreal City Judith Nies, 2014-04-08 An epic struggle over land water and power is erupting in the American West and the halls of Washington DC It began when a 4 000 square mile area of Arizona desert called Black Mesa was divided between the Hopi and Navajo tribes To the outside world it was a land struggle between two fractious Indian tribes to political insiders and energy corporations it was a divide and conquer play for the 21 billion tons of coal beneath Black Mesa Today that coal powers cheap electricity for Los Angeles a new water aqueduct into Phoenix and the neon dazzle of Las Vegas Journalist and historian Judith Nies has been tracking this story for nearly four decades She follows the money and tells us the true story of wealth and water mendacity and corruption at the highest levels of business and government Amid the backdrop of the breathtaking desert landscape Unreal City shows five cultures colliding Hopi Navajo global energy corporations Mormons and US government agencies resulting in a battle over resources and the future of the West Las Vegas may attract 39 million visitors a year but the tourists mesmerized by the dancing water fountains at the Bellagio don't ask where the water comes from They don't see a city with the nation's highest rates of foreclosure unemployment and suicide They don't see the astonishing drop in the water level of Lake Mead where Sin City gets 90 percent of its water supply Nies shows how the struggle over Black Mesa lands is an example of a global phenomenon in which giant transnational corporations have the power to separate indigenous people from their energy rich lands with the help of host governments Unreal City explores how and why resources have been taken from native lands what it means in an era of climate change and why in this city divorced from nature the only thing more powerful than money is water
