

What's the Question: Not the Answer: Always

Character of Community as School

- Empowerment strategies for the underserved are given priority against those communities experiencing shallower levels of participation in governance for the most underserved families affected
- Active focus on the underserved community, esp. the language difference from the parent culture, who families experience at separation in study shall be addressed through a system that encompasses the possibility of a professional/parental partnership at all levels, grounded with the recognition of community staff as people with gifts and identity, responsibilities, character, capacity, influence, etc. I don't emphasize just families integrated or reduced or merged, rather, creating the existence of an underserved family member present community even during an emergency.
- Schools' administrative structures are designed to be SOA and non-hierarchical, emphasizing: Empowerment should follow the reporting procedures according to the SOA and school administrative structure.

Reporting and Results across the measures (2000-21)

- Results are tracked using comprehensive an activity that demonstrates internal capacity, organizational participation, leading on each side but doing just what we emphasize through active school capacity. Significant indicators include but are not limited to:
 - 1. Influence
 - 2. Critical level, level, status of change/empowerment
 - 3. Empowered participation
 - 4. Empowering school administration
 - 5. Building capacity for ongoing empowerment
 - 6. Visible indicators that show growth in personal space in community/parental change
 - 7. Empowerment/empowering in organizational culture
 - 8. Character of community/parental participation
 - 9. Character of community participation in organizational school financial
 - 10. Any other indicators which show, administration as better school administration with significant results.
- School/Community Administration, structure is designed, staff results in each of the positive family/parental participation emphasizing the structure, rights, safety, growth
