Water Rights And Social Justice In The Mekong Region:

Water Rights and Social Justice in the Mekong Region Kate Lazarus, 2011 First Published in 2011 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Water Rights and Social Justice in the Mekong Region Kate Lazarus, Bernadette P. Resurreccion, Nga Dao, Nathan Badenoch, 2012-06-25 The Mekong Region has come to represent many of the important water governance challenges faced more broadly by the mainland Southeast Asian region This book focuses on the complex nature of water rights and social justice in the Mekong region The chapters delve into the diverse social political and cultural dynamics that shape the various realities and scales of water governance in the region in an effort to bring to the forefront some of the local nuances required in the formulation of a larger vision of justice in water governance It is hoped that this contextualized analysis will deepen our understanding of the potential of and constraints on water rights in the region particularly in relation to the need to realize social justice The authors show how vitally important it is that water governance is democratized to allow a more equitable sharing of water resources and counteract the pressures of economic growth that may pose risks to social welfare and environmental sustainability M-power Book Series on Water Governance in the Mekong Region: Water rights and social justice in the Mekong Region , 2007 The Right to Water Farhana Sultana, Alex Loftus, 2013-10-18 The right to clean water has been adopted by the United Nations as a basic human right Yet how such universal calls for a right to water are understood negotiated experienced and struggled over remain key challenges The Right to Water elucidates how universal calls for rights articulate with local historical geographical contexts governance politics and social struggles thereby highlighting the challenges and the possibilities that exist Bringing together a unique range of academics policy makers and activists the book analyzes how struggles for the right to water have attempted to translate moral arguments over access to safe water into workable claims This book is an intervention at a crucial moment into the shape and future direction of struggles for the right to water in a range of political geographic and socio economics contexts seeking to be pro active in defining what this struggle could mean and how it might be taken forward in a far broader transformative politics The Right to Water engages with a range of approaches that focus on philosophical legal and governance perspectives before seeking to apply these more abstract arguments to an array of concrete struggles and case studies In so doing the book builds on empirical examples from Africa Asia Oceania Latin America the Middle East North America and the European Union Water for Food Security, Nutrition and Social Justice Lyla Mehta, Theib Oweis, Claudia Ringler, Barbara Schreiner, Shiney Varghese, 2019-09-19 This book is the first comprehensive effort to bring together Water Food Security and Nutrition FSN in a way that goes beyond the traditional focus on irrigated agriculture Apart from looking at the role of water and sanitation for human well being it proposes alternative and more locally appropriate ways to address complex water management and governance challenges from the local to global levels against a backdrop of growing uncertainties The authors challenge mainstream supply oriented and neo

Malthusian visions that argue for the need to increase the land area under irrigation in order to feed the world's growing population. Instead they argue for a reframing of the debate concerning production processes, waste food consumption and dietary patterns whilst proposing alternative strategies to improve water and land productivity putting the interests of marginalized and disenfranchised groups upfront. The book highlights how accessing water for FSN can be challenging for small holders, vulnerable and marginalized women and men and how water allocation systems and reform processes can negatively affect local people's informal rights. The book argues for the need to improve policy coherence across water, land and food and is original in making a case for strengthening the relationship between the human rights to water and food especially for marginalized women and men. It will be of great interest to practitioners, students and researchers working on water and food issues. Social Challenges for the Mekong Region Mingsan Khāosa'āt, John Dore, 2003

Democratizing Water Governance in the Mekong Region Louis Lebel, 2007. This book, the first in a three volume series, brings together the work of researchers, scholars, activists and leaders in the Mekong region to provide a baseline state of knowledge, review of the contemporary politics and discourses of water use, sharing and management and their implications for local livelihoods. Mekong River, 2006. This report presents the GIWA assessment of the Mekong River region which comprises parts of Cambodia, China, Lao PDR, Laos, Myanmar, Thailand and Vietnam. Rapid economic development and population growth are increasing the demand for water, energy and food, necessitating more hydro dams, the intensification of agricultural and fisheries production and higher rates of deforestation. The resultant transboundary environmental changes, particularly to the fluxes of water and sediments, are leading to severe habitat and community modification. The past and present status and future prospects of water related problems in the Mekong River Basin are discussed and traced back to their root causes. Policy relevant conclusions are provided so that appropriate solutions can be developed to address the emerging challenges to the management of the region's aquatic environment.
