The Uyghurs Strangers In Their Own Land:

The Uyghurs Gardner Bovingdon, 2010-08-06 For more than half a century many Uyghurs members of a Muslim minority in northwestern China have sought to achieve greater autonomy or outright independence Yet the Chinese government has consistently resisted these efforts countering with repression and a sophisticated strategy of state sanctioned propaganda emphasizing interethnic harmony and Chinese nationalism After decades of struggle Uyghurs remain passionate about establishing and expanding their power within government and China's leaders continue to push back refusing to concede any physical or political ground Beginning with the history of Xinjiang and its unique population of Chinese Muslims Gardner Bovingdon follows fifty years of Uyghur discontent particularly the development of individual and collective acts of resistance since 1949 as well as the role of various transnational organizations in cultivating dissent Bovingdon's work provides fresh insight into the practices of nation building and nation challenging not only in relation to Xinjiang but also in reference to other regions of conflict His work highlights the influence of international institutions on growing regional autonomy and underscores the role of representation in nationalist politics as well as the local regional and global implications of the war on terror on antistate movements While both the Chinese state and foreign analysts have portrayed Uyghur activists as Muslim terrorists situating them within global terrorist networks Bovingdon argues that these assumptions are flawed drawing a clear line between Islamist ideology and Uyghur nationhood The Uyghur Community Güljanat Kurmangaliyeva Ercilasun, Konuralp Ercilasun, 2017-11-01 This book analyses the Uyghur community presenting a brief historical background of the Uyghurs and debating the challenges of emerging Uyghur nationalism in the early 20th century It elaborates on key issues within the community such as the identity and current state of religion and worship It also offers a thoughtful and comprehensive analysis of the Uyghur diaspora addressing the issue of identity politics the position of the Uyghurs in Central Asia and the relations of the Uyghurs with Beijing notably analyzing the 2009 Urumqi clashes and their long term impact on Turkish Chinese relations Re examining Uyghur identity through the lens of history religion and politics this is a key read for all scholars interested in China Eurasia and questions of ethnicity and religion The War on the Uyghurs Sean R. Roberts, 2022-01-25 How China is using the US led war on terror to erase the cultural identity of its Muslim minority in the Xinjiang region Within weeks of the September 11 attacks on New York and Washington the Chinese government warned that it faced a serious terrorist threat from its Uyghur ethnic minority who are largely Muslim In this explosive book Sean Roberts reveals how China has been using the US led global war on terror as international cover for its increasingly brutal suppression of the Uyghurs and how the war's targeting of an undefined enemy has emboldened states around the globe to persecute ethnic minorities and severely repress domestic opposition in the name of combatting terrorism Of the eleven million Uyghurs living in China today more than one million are now being held in so called reeducation camps victims of what has become the largest program of mass detention and surveillance in the world Roberts describes how the Chinese government successfully implicated the Uyghurs in the global terror war despite a complete lack of evidence and branded them as a dangerous terrorist threat with links to al Qaeda He argues that the reframing of Uyghur domestic dissent as international terrorism provided justification and inspiration for a systematic campaign to erase Uyghur identity and that a nominal Uyghur militant threat only emerged after more than a decade of Chinese suppression in the name of counterterrorism which has served to justify further state repression A gripping and moving account of the humanitarian catastrophe that China does not want you to know about The War on the Uyghurs draws on Roberts s own in depth interviews with the Uyghurs enabling their voices to be heard

Language, Education and Uyghur Identity in Urban Xinjiang Joanne Smith Finley, Xiaowei Zang, 2015-10-30 As the regional lingua franca the Uyghur language long underpinned Uyghur national identity in Xinjiang. However, since the bilingual education policy was introduced in 2002, Chinese has been rapidly institutionalised as the sole medium of instruction in the region's institutes of education. As a result, studies of the bilingual and indeed multi-lingual Uyghur urban youth have emerged as a major new research trend. This book explores the relationship between language education and identity among the urban Uyghurs of contemporary Xinjiang. It considers ways in which Uyghur urban youth identities began to evolve in response to the state imposition of bilingual education. Starting by defining the notion of ethnic identity, the book explores the processes involved in the formation and development of personal and group identities, considers why ethnic boundaries are constructed between groups and questions how ethnic identity is expressed in social, cultural and religious practice. Against this background, contributors adopt a special focus on the relationship between language use, education and ethnic identity development. As a study of ethnicity in China, this book will be of huge interest to students and scholars of Chinese culture and society, Asian ethnicity, cultural anthropology, sociolinguistics and Asian education.

Contestation and Adaptation Enze Han, 2013-07-23 Contestation and Adaptation unravels the complexities of national identity contestation among various ethnic minority groups in China. It focuses on the interactions between domestic and international forces that inform ethnic groups' national identity contestation, positing a theoretical framework where international factors play a significant role in determining why and when ethnic groups will contest the national identities imposed on them by central governments as part of the nation-building process. Simmering grievances and occasional outbursts of social unrest among ethnic minority populations in China challenge not only the ruling party's legitimacy and governance but also contemporary Chinese national identity and the territorial integrity of the Chinese state. But as Enze Han points out, of the fifty-five ethnic minority groups in China, only the Tibetans and Uyghurs have forcefully contested the idea of a Chinese national identity. He argues that whether ethnic groups contest those national identities depends on whether they perceive a better achievable alternative. In particular, Han argues that ethnic groups with extensive external kinship networks are most likely to perceive a capacity to achieve better circumstances and are therefore more likely to politically mobilize to contest national identity. In the absence of such alternatives, ethnic groups are more likely to cope with their situation through emigration, political ambivalence or assimilation. Using this theoretical framework, the book compares the way that five major ethnic minority groups in China negotiate their national identities with the Chinese nation-state: Uyghurs, Chinese Koreans, Dai, Mongols and Tibetans. Overall, Contestation and Adaptation sheds light on the nation-building processes in China over the past six decades and the ways that different groups have resisted or acquiesced in their dealings with the Chinese state and majority Han Chinese society.

Uyghur Nation David Brophy, 2016-04-04 Along the Russian Qing frontier in the nineteenth century, a new political space emerged, shaped by competing imperial and spiritual loyalties cross border economic and social ties and revolution David Brophy explores how a community of Central Asian Muslims responded to these historic changes by reinventing themselves as the Uyghur nation

The Stranger and the Chinese Moral Imagination Haiyan Lee, 2014-11-12 In the last two decades China has become a dramatically more urban society and hundreds of millions of people have changed residence in the process Family and communal bonds have been broken in a country once known as a society of kith and kin There has been a pervasive sense of moral crisis in contemporary China and the new market economy doesn't seem to offer any solutions This book investigates how the Chinese have coped with the condition of modernity in which strangers are routinely thrust together Haiyan Lee dismisses the easy answers claiming that this moral crisis is merely smoke and mirrors conjured up by paternalistic overwrought leaders and scholars or that it can be simply chalked up to the topsy turvy of a market economy on steroids Rather Lee argues that the perception of crisis is itself symptomatic of a deeper problem that has roots in both the Confucian tradition of kinship and the modern state management of stranger sociality This ambitious work is the first to investigate the figure of the stranger foreigner peasant migrant bourgeois intellectual class enemy unattached woman animal across literature film television and museum culture Lee's aim is to show that hope lies with a robust civil society in which literature and the arts play a key role in sharpening the moral faculties and apprenticing readers in the art of living with strangers In so doing she makes a historical comparative and theoretically informed contribution to the on going conversation on China's uncivil society

Reimagining the Landscape of Religious Education Zehavit Gross, 2023-03-13 This book brings together new thinking and research on religious education's complex and evolving role in the multicultural diverse postmodern era It facilitates new realism and understanding of the current situation from empirical and reflective accounts relating to a variety of countries and political contexts as well as providing innovative methodological approaches to the study of education and religion In different contexts around the world at different levels of education and from different theoretical lenses religious education occupies a contested space The ongoing changing nature of the world due to increasing secularization rapid technological change mass immigration globalization processes conflict and challenging security issues from inter to intra state levels and with shifting geopolitical power balances generates the need to reconceptualize where religious education is positioned It claims that religious education on its own can be an agent of moral social and spiritual transformation are disputed There is significant controversy about whether special religious education that is in faith education still has a role within the post modern world

Informal Markets and Trade in Central Asia and the Caucasus Susanne Fehlings, Hasan H. Karrar, 2022-04-11 This edited book introduces new research on informal markets and trade in Central Asia and the Caucasus The research presented in this volume is based on recent field research in Armenia Georgia Kazakhstan and Kyrgyzstan as well as Beijing Guangzhou Yiwu and the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region in China The nine chapters in this book illustrate how informal markets and trade in Central Asia and the Caucasus have provided space for millions of people across the region to negotiate changes in state and society in the three decades since the breakup of the Soviet Union and the emergence of successor states Collectively the book suggests that informality should be seen as a normative order for polities in Central Asia and the Caucasus for three reasons 1 The inability or unwillingness of the states to measure commercial transactions 2 The highly personalized nature of small business operations that rest on networking and social relations oral agreements and trust 3 Markets and bazaars being embedded within states in which clientelism frequently thrives This book is a significant new contribution to the study of trade and informal markets in Central Asia and the Caucasus and will be a great resource for academics researchers and advanced students of Sociology History Politics Business Economics Social Anthropology and Geography The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Central Asian Survey
